Across America.
Our Middle Kingdom.

Don't Be a Texas Tick.

—By ARTHUR BRISBANE—

TRINIDAD, Col., Jan. 15.

THIS IS written crossing the continent by a zigzag route from New York to Chicago on the New York Central Advance Twentieth Century, Chicago to Ash Fork, Arizona, on the Santa Fe Chief, next from Ash Fork by Fred Harvey automobile, leaving at 5 in the morning to Phoenix, stopping at Prescott on the way, 165 miles, then, after the Western Shippers' and Growers' Conference, about the same distance by automobile to Nogales, interesting town with Mexico on one side of the main street, United States on the other. Then to Los Angeles by the Southern Pacific up to San Francisco and back by a northern route.

THE TRIP across America and back is as interesting after you have made it fifty or a hundred times as it was the first time.

It is a different and an independent United States out here near the Rocky Mountains.

On the front page of Bonfils' Denver Post no large type is devoted to any news except what happens in Colorado or in the big domain of central states covered by the Post.

Western newspapers are good newspapers and tell you everything that happens, once you get past the front page. But nothing that Mussolini can do, nothing that Lloyd George can say, nothing that Russia can suggest is as important to the Pueblo Chieftain as the fact that "Pueblo banks pick officers for new year." And in Denver the finding of Alice Lucille Humphreys, lost 13-year-old daughter of a millionaire, is bigger news than any steel merger.

BONFILS MAKES an exception in favor of Calvin Coolidge and puts his philosophy on the front page.

Mr. Coolidge says, and the young should remember it:

"Knowing a little more about a subject under discussion than anyone else on the floor (of the legislature) will be the surest way to success."

That's the Calvin Coolidge way and a good way. But also to seem to know more about everything than anybody else, without taking the trouble to know, is another road to success, much traveled.

THIS REGION to Bonfils and others that live in it is what the heart of China was to the emperor, "the middle kingdom."

It is a big country and a high country.

The Chief is just now rolling out of La Junta, 4,000 feet above sea level, going through wide, flat plains nearly a mile high, stretching as far as you can see. In Denver off to the north the steps of the capitol building are exactly a mile above the ocean. On the right as you go west you see the deep shadows of mountain ranges other thousands of feet high.

CATTLE BROWSE in fields of standing corn stalks or withered brown grass on the field, their backs humped up by the cold. The men, too, are patient and hardy out here. You see several of them standing 50 feet apart on the ice of a small stream, fishing through holes. And think of the fish in the dark freezing waters below.

It is hard for steam-heated flat dwellers to realize what life is on the average, hard also for sunbathers in Florida and for those that live in New Orleans and along the warm Gulf Coast.

However, the fish wouldn't leave their icy water and the fishermen wouldn't leave their place on the ice even if you offered them "sun back" pajamas and a spot on the Miami sands. They like it here, like the cold, like the hardships, prefer coats lined with sheepskin to sun-back pajamas.

EVERY AMERICAN should see all of this wide, beautiful country, west, east, north and south, going by one railroad and returning by another, and without fail making one trip through the Panama Canal.

The pessimist especially should see his country, from the giant trees of Washington and Oregon in the northwest, to the palm trees and sand beaches of Florida.

A trip from the Atlantic to the Pacific means only three nights on the train now, and the comfort of modern travel is unbelievable, solid trains of steel cars, running smoothly, with every comfort of a first-class hotel and the additional pleasure of going somewhere and seeing the world as you go.

YOU SYMPATHIZE with the turtle because he cannot go far. But at least he goes as far as he can.

You feel sorry for the Texas "tick" brushed from a cow, and unable in his whole lifetime to crawl more than two or three feet in search of another cow's leg to start in business again.

Don't be a turtle or a Texas tick.

Travel; see your country.

IN THIS LAND of marvelous roads, a little automobile will take you everywhere, cost you little, less than staying at home, for you don't "go out nights" when traveling.

Buy your railroad ticket, or get your car and start.

QUEER WILL OF RECLUSE DEFECTIVE

Woman, Dead at 80, Wrote 10,000 Words, Had No Witness; $50,000 Involved

The will of Miss Tillie Pachter, 80-year-old East End recluse, was offered for probate today and proved one of the most unusual documents ever presented in the register of wills' office.

It was handwritten, almost 20 years ago to the day. It is more than 10,000 words long—probably the longest personal will ever recorded here.

It specifies that the bodies of her family shall be disinterred and laid alongside hers in a $25,000 mausoleum.

It reveals an estate of less than $50,000, rather than the previous estimated properties worth $250,000.

It discloses numerous bequests to charitable and educational institutions.

STATE MAY COLLECT

And with all its length, certain of the bequests will be refused and these shares turned over to the state.

Register of Wills Joseph N. Mackrell explained that, while he was convinced that the author's signature was genuine, the will lacked the signatures of witnesses. Mackrell said that the law in such cases specified that bequests to charitable and educational institutions shall not be recognized.

The estate consists of real estate in the East End valued at $20,000—and a rare violin, made by Jakob Steiner in Absam, Tyrol, in 1675. The executor, the Fidelity Title and Trust Company, is having the violin examined to determine its worth, which may be more than $20,000.

The nullified bequests include $5,000 to the Western Pennsylvania Institute for the Blind.

DISTRICT GAINS 37 PLANTS

Twenty-seven new manufacturing plants and warehouses, representing an aggregate property investment of $29,502,000, began operations in the Pittsburgh district during 1930, President James Rae, of the Pittsburgh Chamber of Commerce, announced today.

Five additional manufacturing plants are under construction, and five industrial reasearch laboratories have been either completed or are nearing completion.

1,293 EMPLOYED

These new plants, said the chamber president, provide employment for 1,293 wage-earners and computing their aggregate income on the basis of the average yearly wage, or $1,444, paid here, it means that more than $1,867,-

Allies Swayed Wilson in Crises, Pershing Asserts

MY EXPERIENCES IN THE WORLD WAR

—By JOHN J. PERSHING,—

Commander-in-Chief, American Expeditionary Forces.

CHAPTER IV.

Succeeding chapters of "My Experiences in the World War" will appear daily and Sunday exclusively in the Sun-Telegraph.

My first and my only meeting with President Wilson until after the Armistice occurred May 24, 1917, when I called on him with Secretary of War Baker. After some conversation with Mr. Baker on shipping, Mr. Wilson turned to me.

"General, we are giving you some very difficult tasks these days," said the President.

"Perhaps so," I replied, "but that is what we are trained to expect, Mr. President."

The President then mentioned my experience in Mexico and inquired about my acquaintance with France. I had expected him to say something about the part our army should play in the war, but he said nothing.

Gen. Pershing

Upon leaving, I said: "Mr. President, I appreciate the honor you have conferred upon me by the assignment you have given me, and I realize the responsibilities it entails, but you can count upon the best that is in me."

To this the President replied:

"General, you were chosen entirely upon your record, and I have every confidence that you will succeed; you shall have my full support."

The President then asked me to convey to the King of Great Britain and to the President of France his greetings and best wishes. His manner was cordial and simple, and I was impressed with his poise and his air of determination.

His assurance of confidence in me was gratifying, but in the difficult situations that arose later regarding the manner of aiding the Allies, he was inclined to yield to the persistent importunities of the Allied representatives in Washington.

In the actual conduct of operations I was given entire freedom, and in this respect was to enjoy an experience unique in the history of American wars.

May 27, 1917, the day before I was to sail from New York, Secretary Baker sent me a letter of instructions concerning my command, authorities and duties in Europe, which is quoted in full:

"The President directs me to communicate to you the following:

"1. The President designates you to command all the land forces of the United States operating in Continental Europe and in the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland, including any part of the Marine Corps which may be detached for service there with the army. From your command are excepted the military attaches and others of the army who may be on duty directly with our several embassies.

"2. You will proceed with your staff to Europe. Upon arrival in Great Britain, France or any other of the countries at war with the Imperial German government, you will at once place yourself in communication with the American Embassy and through its agency with the authorities of any country to which the forces of the United States may be sent.

"3. You are invested with the authority and duties devolved by the law, regulations, orders and customs of the United States upon the commander of an army in the field in time of war and with the authority and duties in like manner devolved upon department commanders in peace and war, including the special authorities and duties assigned to the commander of the Philippine De-

PITTSBURGH MEN CALLED BY NYE

Dr. Frederick and Frank Face Questioning at Capital In Davis Fund Inquiry

By GLADSTONE WILLIAMS,
Staff Correspondent.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 15.—Further evidence touching on the Allegheny County end of the recent Pennsylvania primary and general election will be sought by the Nye senatorial campaign funds investigating committee when it meets Friday to resume hearings on the case of Senator James J. Davis.

This developed today when it became known that the committee, headed by Senator Gerald P. Nye, of North Dakota, has issued subpenas on Dr. F. H. Frederick and Ralph Frank, of Pittsburgh.

CRITICIZED VOTE QUIZ

Dr. Frederick was treasurer of the Allegheny County Davis-Brown primary election fund. Frank, who has been active in the political camp headed by Allegheny County Commissioner C. C. McGovern, freely criticized the activities of the Allegheny County recount board, charged with investigating alleged election frauds.

The two Pittsburghers are among a dozen or more witnesses, including Senator Davis himself, who have been asked to appear at the hearing here Friday and Saturday.

Among these witnesses are A. Boyd Hamilton, of Harrisburg, secretary of the state Republican Committee; John R. McFetridge, of Philadelphia; Vincent Smith, of Greensburg; W. C. Klein, of Coudersport; Joseph W. Littell, of

3 OVERCOME CARRIED TO SAFETY

Houses Afire in North Side, Swissvale, Turtle Creek; Woman Goes to Hospital

Thirty persons were forced into the wind-swept streets by fires on the North Side, in Swissvale and Turtle Creek during the early morning hours today. In the North Side blaze three women were overcome and carried to the street. One woman was removed to the hospital suffering from smoke.

Overcome by smoke in their room on the third floor of a rooming house at 1307 Porterfield street, North Side, this morning, Mrs. Peter Carsi, 18, was carried to the street by Fire Capt. Charles J. McDermott, of No. 43 Engine company. Henry Hobbins, 30, carried his mother, Mrs. Sarah Hobbins, 63, to the street after she was dazed by the smoke. Miss Julia Rodgers, 22, a roomer on the second floor, was carried out by Fireman John King. She was taken to the Allegheny General Hospital.

STARTS IN BASEMENT

The North Side fire started shortly before 6 o'clock, originating in the basement of the three-story brick rooming house conducted by Mr. and Mrs. H. C. Curry. The flames were confined to the basement and the second floor, but smoke filled the entire house. There were 17 persons in the house at the time.

Mrs. Hobbins, the Rodgers girl and Mrs. Carsi were the only ones affected by the smoke. They were taken to the homes of neighbors and the Rodgers girl was later taken to the hospital. The cause of the fire is not known. Fireman William Thomas assisted Capt. McDermott in leading roomers through the smoke filled halls to the street. The damage was estimated at $1,500.

In Swissvale members of two families, including three children, were forced into the street in night clothing when flames swept a two-story brick apartment house at 1004-06 South Braddock avenue. The building is near the city line, and two Pittsburgh fire companies were called to aid the borough firemen. Damage was estimated at $15,000.

Unable to sleep after having several teeth extracted, Mrs. Josephine Jacobs, 32, left her bed shortly after 3 o'clock this morning to investigate the odor of

ARMED BANDITS HOLD UP STORE

Armed and masked, two Negroes entered Iron City Clock Hospital, 2120 Forbes street, today, and after tying the proprietor, John Comorski, in a chair in a rear room, escaped with $80 and jewelry valued at $110, according to a police report.

Comorski was alone in the shop when the Negroes entered. Threatening death if he cried out, the bandits pushed Comorski into a rear room and tied him in a chair. After a hurried search of the store the intruders departed.

A safe in the offices of the Liberty Body Manufacturing Company, 3404 Liberty avenue, was forced open last night by a thief who gained entrance through a fire escape. The loss was not determined.

Owen Clovin reported to police that thieves entered his butcher shop, 4507 Tonley street, and rifled the till, taking $25.

BOMBAY, India, Jan. 15.—(AP.)—A man and a woman were wounded by police rifle fire and 150 persons injured by laths or staves when police charged a crowd of Nationalist demonstrators at Ahmadabad Wednesday.

The demonstration was in protest at execution of four Sholapur rioters a few days ago.

Magistrate Soost Upsets One-Light Auto Crusade

Traffic Inspector Jacob Dorsey's crusade against one-light autos was riddled and spent today in Traffic Court, where Magistrate William J. Soost was discharging the defendants.

Two hundred seventeen motorists were being arraigned and as they were called Magistrate Soost was discharging them. One was fined, but that was because he had sassed the arresting policeman.

Soost explained his action:

"This crusade is unfair. It is possible for a driver to be driving with only one light and not be aware of the condition. And the police are not giving the drivers a chance to put in new lights, even when new ones are in the car."

EXTRA SESSION THREAT IN HOOVER-SENATE FOOD FUND WAR

RELIEF FIGHT PUSHED BY COALITION

Plan to Write Provision Into Farm Measure; Probe of Red Cross Finance Looms

By WILLIAM K. HUTCHINSON
International News Service

WASHINGTON, Jan. 15.—The Hoover administration and the Senate were locked in a new controversy today as the Democratic insurgent coalition sought enactment of a $25,000,000 appropriation to be used by the American Red Cross in buying food for needy citizens of the nation.

This plan was substituted for the administration $45,000,000 seed loan program which Mr. Hoover opposed. It was aimed to overcome to the Democratic objection to any direct appropriation from the treasury for relief of unemployed or drought sufferers.

COALITION STANDS FIRM

The Democratic-Insurgent coalition served notice on the administration it would write the Red Cross loan into the agricultural department appropriation bill and keep it there even if the bill were killed. This constituted a threat of forcing a special session of the new Congress since the agricultural appropriation bill must be enacted before March 4 or that department will have to close after July 1.

The second administration relief measure appropriating a $45,000,000 fund for feed, seed, fertilizer and gasoline loans to drought stricken farmers was sent to the White House today. The first administration bill was the $116,000,000 public works measure.

Administration leaders, responding to the President's opposition, were ready to fight the Red Cross appropriation with parliamentary objections. To overcome this Senator Joe Robinson, Democratic floor leader who sponsored the plan, announced he would move to suspend the rules of the Senate to add it to the bill.

THREATEN RED CROSS QUIZ

A threat of a Senatorial inquiry into its financial operations meanwhile hovered over the Red Cross. Senator Thomas (Dem.) of Oklahoma openly charged the organization with "hoarding" more than $25,000,000 while appealing for more funds.

Other senators have been free with criticism of the administration and the Red Cross, charging an "inadequacy of relief measures". There seemed no doubt whatever of a finish fight over the Red Cross appropriation, even if the coalition must filibuster to kill the Agricultural Department appropriation bill. Unless the administration yields, there is a serious probability that a special session of the new Congress will be forced after March 4.

RED CROSS HERE MAKES APPEAL

try for drought relief in stricken areas.

J. Rogers Flannery has been announced as chairman of the drought relief committee in charge of the local Red Cross campaign. Mr. Flannery, who is in New York sent the following statement regarding the appeal here:

"We have complete confidence that Pittsburgh citizens will respond to this emergency appeal as they have always responded to appeals for help. The Red Cross, with its record of splendid human service in many disasters, is undertaking a tremendous problem in the relief of drought-stricken areas in the United States. Generous national support is essential to its success, and the rapid raising of Allegheny County's quota of $300,000 will do much to demonstrate Pittsburgh's generosity to the whole country."

Other members of the local committee are Richard K. Mellon, Harry W. Dunlap, Howard Heinz, Mr. Oliver, Mrs. Henry R. Rea and A. W. Robertson.

According to officials of the Red Cross, the number of families in need of relief considerably exceeds the number gained in the Mississippi flood disaster.

smoke. She discovered a fire in the basement of the apartment. She awakened her husband, Julius, and they carried their three children, Samuel 5 months, Saul 6 years, and Melvin 11, to the street and to the home of a neighbor.

NEIGHBORS AROUSED

Jacobs then aroused Mr. and Mrs. William Morris, who occupy the second floor of the apartment, Mr. and Mrs. William Moore, who occupy the first floor apartment opposite the Jacobs apartment, were away from home at the time of the fire. A fourth apartment is vacant.

After making certain that all occupants of the building had escaped, Jacobs called the Swissvale firemen. A short time later a neighbor summoned city firemen by sounding an alarm from Braddock avenue and Henrietta street.

City firemen arrived just as the flames broke through the roof of the building. Believing that the flames would spread, city firemen removed eight automobiles from the 10 garages in the rear of the burning apartment. The flames were confined to the one apartment building.

GIRL DISCOVERS FIRE

In Turtle Creek a father and five small children had narrow escapes from being burned to death. Fire broke out in the home of Peter Hopca, 52, a widower, of 507 Stewart street. Awakened by smoke in her bedroom, a daughter, Anna, 15, called to her father, who went downstairs to investigate.

Hopca fought flames in the first floor 10 minutes before he called to his children, whose ages range from five to 16 years, to flee. When the members of the family were safely outside he summoned the Turtle Creek firemen who extinguished the blaze. The residence, a six-room frame structure, was damaged $700, according to Fire Chief E. D. Kenyon.

West Homestead firemen extinguished two fires last night. A blaze which started in a trunk stored in the basement of the tailor shop of Tony Selcheff, 308 Eighth avenue, was extinguished with a loss of $150. The second fire, which damaged a lumber pile opposite the W. D. Johnston Lumber Company yard, Seventh street and McDonald avenue, is thought to have been accidentally started by children. The damage was slight.

092 has been added to the buying power of the district.

Pittsburgh is growing steadily in diversified industries, Mr. Rae declared. In 1930 27 new industries located in this district, and in 1929, 26 plants began operations. He said these industries represent a total investment of more than $55,000,000.

AUTOS MADE HERE

The industrial survey shows that 1930 saw the beginning of the manufacture of passenger automobiles in the Pittsburgh district in the American Austin Car Company plant at Butler. The new wrought iron process of the A. M. Byers Company brought a large plant to Ambridge.

A large southern fabricating plant, the Ingalls Iron Works Company, started a plant at Verona. The reason for the new plants is seen in the centralized marketing area which in this district is also near the source of raw materials and has a plentiful supply of labor, power and transportation.

In great detail Miss Pachter specified that the bodies of her father, the Rev. Isaiah S. Pachter, her mother, Henrietta, her brother, Jacob and her sister, Esther, shall be disinterred from their graves in West View Cemetery and, on the site of those graves, shall be built a mausoleum, costing not less than $25,000, for the bodies of the entire family.

To Rabbi Honel Meis, of Nice, France, Miss Pachter left $500 as a reward for his treatment of her sister, Esther, who died in Europe years ago.

In filing the will, the Fidelity Title and Trust Company reported that it had been unable to locate any relatives of Miss Pachter, who lay dead in her modest home at 5517 Fifth avenue for two weeks before the body was discovered.

The will had been written January 16, 1911.

Funeral services were held today for Miss Pachter. Interment was in West View Cemetery.

DRY DEMOCRATS AROUSED AT 'ANTI' GAINS

Four Governors' Declarations Against Prohibition Stirs Members in Congress

By GEORGE R. HOLMES
International News Service

WASHINGTON, Jan. 15.—Dry Democrats in Congress—and there are a lot of them—have looked with increasing dismay since the first of the year upon the steady succession of Democratic governors who are boldly advocating repeal of prohibition in their inaugural messages and addresses.

The first two weeks of January have seen four Democratic governors take the oath of office and in the next breath declare against prohibition. Roosevelt in New York, Cross in Connecticut, Ely in Massachusetts and Ritchie in Maryland. In all except Ritchie, their policy represents conversion.

ANTI-DRY DELEGATES

What this portends for the next Democratic national convention may be easily imagined. The senators from these states are also opposed to prohibition as are the most of the congressmen. They will control their delegates to the next national convention and there is little doubt in the minds of any politicians of either party in Washington that they will go to that convention to battle for their principles.

These four states alone, New York, Connecticut, Massachusetts and Maryland, will have a bloc of some 154 delegates in the next convention. When it is considered that the Democratic party in New Jersey, Illinois, Pennsylvania, Ohio, Rhode Island, Washington, Nevada, Delaware, Louisiana, and to some extent Missouri, is preponderantly anti-dry, either in party platform or leadership, the enormity of what the drys are up against becomes more apparent.

CANDIDATES FOR REPEAL

Thus it would perhaps be not too much to say, and it is being freely said in Democratic quarters here, that when the delegates to the next Democratic National convention assemble in June of 1932 a majority of them, or very close to it, will be outspokenly in favor of ditching prohibition in platform and candidate.

Moreover, every Democrat who at this time can be considered a formidable candidate for the nomination, with the sole exception of Senator Joe T. Robinson, of Arkansas, is also against prohibition, which fact is of more than passing significance.

Democratic opposition to prohibition has been particularly marked since the hectic campaign of 1928. In his inaugural address at Annapolis yesterday, Gov. Ritchie took cognizance of this, and as the pioneer in the movement found satisfaction in taking a sly dig at his party brethren. Ritchie has hammered against prohibition for 10 years.

TRAINMEN FIND MAN CRUSHED

With the top of his skull crushed, a man believed to be Frank Adams, 25, of New Kensington, was found unconscious under the Black Run Bridge at Oakmont by a Pennsylvania Railroad crew this morning. Beside the victim was a heavy automatic pistol.

Taken to Allegheny General Hospital, it was stated the man probably would die. County detectives Thomas Calig and Samuel Whisner were detailed to investigate.

Frederick, Frank Summoned By Nye's Senate Inquiry Friday on Vote Spending

Beaver Falls; Philemon Dickinson of Philadelphia; A. H. Letzley of Huntsdale; James Walper of Harrisburg, secretary of the commonwealth.

After hearing that Chairman Nye was disposed to charge him with the full amount—between $600,000 and $500,000—spent in behalf of the Brown-Davis primary effort, Senator Davis late Wednesday issued the following statement:

"Senator Nye is at last driven to the admission that there is no improper practice or corruption shown in my conduct in the primary election in Pennsylvania last May.

"The people will readily see how ridiculous it is to charge me with the responsibility for the expenditures of the entire primary ticket."

Politicians Wonder On Nye's Next Move

Where is the Nye investigating committee going to delve next?

That is the question politicians are asking each other today. The gossip started as a result of the disclosure yesterday exclusively in the Sun-Telegraph that Attorney Ralph H. Frank had been subpenaed to appear tomorrow morning before Senator Gerald P. Nye's committee at Washington.

In the subpena, a telegraphic summons, Frank was advised that he would be questioned concerning his connection with the activities of the primary election of May, 1930.

CHECK LIST STOLEN

The Recount Board is the one that just got organized the week of May 28 under the personal supervision of Presiding Judge James R. Macfarlane, of Common Pleas Court, when somebody stole the voters' check list out of the box from the First District, Sixth Ward.

The board was composed of Attorney Leander Trautman, Walter S. Straub, American Legion leader, and Howard W. Bennett, former investigator for the Elections Association of Allegheny County.

There was an investigation by Judge James R. Macfarlane, but it did not disclose the missing list. Then the quiz was placed in the hands of District Attorney Andrew T. Park. The list never was found.

The manner in which the recount was conducted was criticized in a public statement by Attorney Frank because of the secrecy thrown about the activities of the board.

COSTLY—"NO RESULTS"

The recount board functioned until August. County Commissioner Charles C. McGovern declared its operations had cost the county $50,000 and produced no results.

District Attorney Andrew T. Park, after scanning the reports of the Recount Board turned over to him, contradicted McGovern, saying:

"The work of the recount board was not wasted. It has been very valuable and formed a basis on which my office can proceed."

He later said but few of the irregularities found by the board were of a criminal nature, mostly bookkeeping errors, and that few if any prosecutions would be instigated. He put his own investigators on the job to make sure of the facts.

The Recount Board and all its works had become pretty much matters of memory until yesterday when Senator Nye sent the telegraphic summons for Attorney Frank. Bennett was the only member of the board who feels that he may be called to testify before the committee. He said last night that he is expecting to be subpenaed.

Attorney Trautmann is ill. At his home last night it was said that he has not been summoned. Straub said last night that he has not heard anything from Senator Nye.

Gridders Use Hoover Home As Goal Post

STANFORD UNIVERSITY, Cal., Jan. 15.—(AP.)—President Hoover's home on the Stanford campus was turned into a goal post to settle a post-season football dispute yesterday.

Richard Bogue and George Gray, Stanford tackles, argued over their relative merits on the gridiron. Bogue boasted he could kick a football over the President's home and that Gray couldn't catch it. Gray wagered Bogue couldn't boot it over, but that if he did, Gray would catch it.

Neither exaggerated his own abilities. It was a perfect play from Mr. Hoover's back yard to his front yard. The Presidential goal post was unharmed.

MARION NIXON

ASKS WARRANT FOR ACTRESS

LOS ANGELES, Jan. 15.—(AP.)—Mrs. Etta Mae Nixon, stepmother of Marion Nixon, film actress, has sought a warrant from the city prosecutor for the arrest of the actress on the charge Miss Nixon had locked Mrs. Nixon out of her house. A hearing was to be held today.

Mrs. Nixon told him Miss Nixon secretly had a locksmith change the locks on the doors of the house she and her husband, Frederick Nixon, occupied up to the time of their separation in November.

Nixon filed suit for divorce in November, charging mental cruelty and it was answered by the wife in a cross complaint charging cruelty and bodily harm.

Edward Hillman, husband of Miss Nixon, said he purchased the house and Mrs. Nixon had no legal right to enter it.

MONOPOLY SEEN IN OIL PLAN

Independent Leader Scores Wilbur for Opposition To Tariff Proposal

WASHINGTON, Jan. 15.—(AP.)—Wirt Franklin, of Oklahoma City, president of the Independent Petroleum Association, today opened the governors' relief conference of independent oil operators with a charge that the government's conservation policy is building a monopoly.

The Oklahoman, delivering the keynote address, struck at Secretary Wilbur's opposition to oil tariff and departing from his prepared speech, struck at Secretary Mellon, whom he accused of being the leading director of importing oil companies.

He indicated the primary object of the conference would be a determined drive for a tariff or embargo.

ATTACKS PROGRAM

Franklin attacked the conservation program as ruinous and building up a virtual monopoly of oil resources of the nation, at the expense of smaller operators and through development of foreign fields.

The conservationists, Franklin said, are in a conspiracy with large companies to destroy the small independent producers. He contended Wilbur's policy would "destroy Western civilization."

Referring directly to Secretary Wilbur's statement that America should import her petroleum to conserve her resources, Franklin declared:

"This is a full and complete admission of the purposes of those promoting the so-called conservation movement—to turn over to the four companies chiefly engaged in importing oil the entire markets of the United States."

HURLEY REPLIES

Secretary of War Hurley, replying to Franklin, told the conference the administration "has taken no position for or against a tariff on oil."

Referring to the Wilbur statement that such a tariff was unnecessary, Hurley emphasized the federal oil conservation board had taken no stand either way. Both Hurley and Wilbur are members of the board.

Hurley said the tariff commission is studying oil schedules, and added:

"The present crisis in the oil industry has been brought about by a marked decrease in consumption and a tremendous increase in production."

TRAINMEN SCAN JOB NEEDS

Ways and means to secure employment for unemployed railroaders was discussed today as the three day session of the General Grievance Committee of the Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen of the Pennsylvania Railroad opened in the Mayfair Hotel.

J. A. Zanger, chairman of the committee, is presiding. Representing the Pennsylvania lines west of Pittsburgh were 57 brakemen, baggagemen, yardmen and switchmen.

A plan to cut the time of regular employes to provide work for members who have been laid off is being considered by the trainmen.

U. S. Trade Gains With Britain's, Coolidge Says

NEW YORK, Jan. 15.

To the Editor of the Sun-Telegraph:

Some of the current reports concerning the expected visit of the Prince of Wales to the Argentine suggest that any advantage resulting to British trade might be an injury to our own exports. That view is unnecessary. The British Empire is world wide. It is a great stabilizing influence.

Calvin Coolidge

Naturally it wants trade but it wants friendly relations even more. The visits of its royal house are properly made for that purpose and do not differ from the trip made by Mr. Hoover to South America.

The better the trade of the empire the better will be our trade. Over two-fifths of our exports go to the British Empire. Canada is our largest customer with the British Isles a close second. We want them all prosperous. To maintain our living standards we have and shall retain some advantage in our home markets under the tariff, but imports of about three billion dollars, free from duties, make us the second largest free market in the world. No nation can do all the export trade on earth. Unless it is properly distributed it diminishes. We can take our chances with all other exporters and wish them well.

CALVIN COOLIDGE.

Birth Control Inevitable, Will Durant Says Here

Birth control is inevitable with the world's present demand for brain and quality rather than numbers and muscle with the machine age as the direct cause for the needed change in the viewpoint of Will Durant, author, traveler and philosopher.

Mr. Durant is here for a lecture tonight on "Marriage in Transition" at the Y. M. H. A. auditorium. Mr. Durant asserted acceptance of birth control will be made by the cities, but rural resistance to the movement will continue for some time. Pointing out the necessity for legalized information, Durant said:

"Morals necessarily must change with the world. In the agricultural period, early marriage and many children were an economic necessity. With the growth of cities in the industrial age, life became more complex. Because it requires a longer period for a person to become self supporting, marriage is deferred. With machines taking the place of men and muscles, children are no longer an economic necessity. Brains and quality are needed now rather than numbers. Japan has recognized the situation and legalized birth control. Science has reduced the death rate to such a degree that birth control must follow and is inevitable."

Earthquake Rocking Mexico City Terrifies Thousands

WEIRD LIGHT, VOLCANO ADD TO PANIC

Fifteen States Feel Shocks; Six Killed, 34 Injured As People Pray in Street

MEXICO CITY, Jan. 15.—(AP.)—Severe earthquakes which rocked Mexico City for more than four minutes early last night took one life, injured 25 persons, knocked down 50 walls and houses and did other damage here.

Residents, attaching significance to the coming of the quake on the heels of three of the coldest days in many generations, ran panic-stricken into the streets and knelt to pray in a driving rain and electric storm.

Dispatches to the newspaper Universal from Oaxaca today said six persons were killed and nine were injured there by the earthquake. Much of the city was in ruins, many buildings having collapsed.

FLICKERING LIGHT

For hours after the tremors a flickering yellow light pervaded the skies, glowing unnaturally through the rain and adding to the general fright. There were reports that the volcano Popocatepetl, 55 miles away, was in minor eruption, tossing rocks and fire from its crater. Clouds obscured the snow-covered summit from the city.

The first of the shocks was felt at 6:51:47 p. m., the maximum motion occurring at 6:52:57. After four minutes the seismographs at Tacubaya Observatory were displaced by the shocks and no further record was made. Other instruments showed that the tremors continued for 28 minutes in various parts of Mexico, concluding at 7:19 p. m.

FIFTEEN STATES AFFECTED

Fifteen states and the federal district were affected. Both Vera Cruz and Tampico reported strong quakes, but with only minor damage. Inhabitants of both cities fled into the streets, terror-stricken.

The quakes last night were of an undulating character. Church bells tolled, clocks stopped and chandeliers were tilted. Lights went off and telephone service failed for about 10 minutes.

Persons occupying a Turkish bath in the Hotel Regis had some very bad minutes until the lights came on and the shaking stopped. Bathers in a pool at the Fronton Mexico ran in their wet suits into the streets despite the freezing temperature. Water from the pool was forced into the building and into the streets.

STAR DENIES EMPLOYING REX BELL

Cowboy Actor Admits He Sent Endearing Message; $125,000 Extortion Plot

LOS ANGELES, Jan. 15.—(AP.)—Clara Bow, the target of recriminations, clung today to her role as a prosecution witness in the trial of her former secretary, Daisy De Voe, on charges of grand theft.

Alternately sobbing and stamping a foot while testifying, the red-headed actress yesterday sought to show Miss De Voe stole $16,000 of her money and attempted to obtain $125,000 from her in an extortion scheme.

The flapper heroine of motion pictures seemed on the verge of hysteria under searching questioning of Miss De Voe's counsel, Nathan Freedman.

CHARGES EXTORTION

Miss Bow had been recalled to the stand to testify concerning an alleged attempt by Miss De Voe to obtain $125,000 from her under pain of having letters and telegrams from the film flapper's boy friends released to newspapers. The actress testified:

"I asked Daisy, 'And you're not kidding me? Isn't it true that you're trying to shake me down for $125,000?'"

Miss Bow defended her latest "boy friend," Rex Bell, cowboy actor, with heated denials that he was at present holding the position formerly held by Miss De Voe.

Bell, when called to the stand, admitted he was the author of telegrams to Miss Bow containing endearing phrases.

STATEMENT BY DAISY

A 30-page statement of Miss De Voe to a deputy prosecutor, made at the time of her arrest, November 6, was read into the records. Part which referred to Miss De Voe being afraid to tell Clara she was quitting read:

"I didn't tell her because Miss Bow was drunk. If I had gotten into an argument with her she would have tried to kill me, because she tried it once before. I wanted to get settled as quietly as possible and keep Clara out of the papers, because one more slam in the papers and Clara is through in pictures."

SPEED AIRPORT FOR 5 GROUPS

The County Commissioners today ordered 100 acres of the new municipal airport in Mifflin Township prepared at once for landing purposes, after five aviation companies revealed they had rejected proferred five-year contracts for exclusive use of Bettis Field.

Representatives of the companies said they had received letters December 31, from the Curtiss-Wright Company, operating Bettis Field, asking that they sign five-year contracts, limiting them to that port, or pay $10 for each ship landing.

They refused to sign and protested the $10 charge as exorbitant, with the result that present contracts were extended for a short time, the air experts said. They were anxious to use the county port as soon as possible, they said.

Public Works Director Norman F. Brown said the 100 acres could be leveled and rolled in two or three weeks.

The commissioners also agreed to hold conferences regarding request of the air representatives for speeding up construction; early decision on management of the port; agreement on rates and cooperation on continued development of air transportation.

Appearing before the commissioners were Maj. H. S. Martin, representing the Pennsylvania Air Lines; L. P. Arnold, Transcontinental-Western Airways; J. D. Condon, Pittsburgh Airways, and M. R. Scharff, Main Flying Service. The Clarksburg Airway, the fifth company to receive the Bettis Field ultimatum, was not represented.

SMITH OFFERED 'APOLOGY'

WASHINGTON, Jan. 15.—(AP.)—Alfred E. Smith had a reply today from Robert H. Lucas but it contained only a conditional offer of the apology which the former Democratic presidential candidate demanded.

Smith, in a letter to Senator Wagner (Dem.), New York, had asked apology from the Republican committee for "permitting" Lucas to distribute a bar-room carton.

Lucas issued a statement last night, saying in part:

"Gov. Smith asks me to apologize. He says a cartoon was distributed which conveyed the information that he was 'wet.' He says the impression made there was based on incorrect information. If the Governor will state that he had done a complete aboutface since 1928 and is now for prohibition then I owe him an apology."

The Republican official asked also whether Smith and Rasko were considering apologizing for subsidizing an organized campaign to misrepresent and smear the President of the United States.

JOBLESS COUNT BEGINS HERE

The census of the unemployed in Pittsburgh is being conducted today in all of the leading charitable institutions, in the hotels and in the Banksville road "jungle." A group of 175 men has started the house-to-house canvass.

Pittsburgh is one of 20 cities in which the census is being taken.

It is planned to complete the census within two weeks, according to Joseph E. Routley, who is in charge of the enumeration. Headquarters have been established in the American State Bank Building.

The census at the Helping Hand Association headquarters in Water street was taken at 5 o'clock this morning. More than 1,400 men were registered. Surveys were made late last night at the Salvation Army and Improvement of the Poor barracks.

It was a case of unemployed listing the unemployed, since virtually all enumerators have not worked since the regular government census last April.

The unemployed apple sellers are not to be classified as unemployed. Retired persons are not being considered as unemployed.

'Didn't Want to Do It,' Says Clara of Ex-'Pal'

By MARIAN RHEA.
International News Service.

LOS ANGELES, Jan. 15.—The Bow mop of flaming hair was wildly aflutt. The famous Bow eyes glittered with good old Irish temper. The famous Bow voice was shrill.

Clara, "It" girl of the movies was holding forth with plenty of vim, vigor and vitality on the error of Daisy DeVoe's ways—Daisy DeVoe who was, once upon a time, the irate Clara said, "a swell pal."

Clapping the Paris hat that she held in her hand atop her bristling titian hair where it rested at a decidedly rakish angle, she sank down in one of Deputy District Attorney Clark's easiest chairs and declaimed:

"Gosh, I'm tired. Gimme a cigaret, somebody. This court baloney makes me sick.

"I didn't want do it, —sit up there and tell a lot of stuff on Daisy. I felt like a heel, honest I did. But what's a girl gonna do? Let a nasty little blonde do her out or a lotta dough and get away with it? Not me."

"4. You will establish, after consultation with the French War Office, all necessary base lines of communication, depots, etc., and make all the preliminary arrangements essential to active participation in operations.

"5. In military operations against the Imperial German Government you are directed to co-operate with the forces of the other countries employed against that enemy; but in so doing the underlying idea must be kept in view that the forces of the United States are a separate and distinct component of the combined forces, the integrity of which must be preserved. This fundamental rule is subject to such minor exceptions in particular circumstances as your superior may approve. The decision as to when your command or any part of it is ready for action is confided to you, and you will exercise full discretion in determining the method of co-operation. But, until the forces of the United States are in your judgment sufficiently strong to warrant operations as an independent command, it is understood that you will co-operate as a component of whatever army you may be assigned to by the French Government.

"6. You will keep the Department fully advised of all that concerns your command, and will communicate your recommendations freely and directly to the Department. And in general you are vested with all necessary authority to carry on the war vigorously in harmony with the spirit of these instructions and towards a victorious conclusion.

GEN. PERSHING AND HIS HAND-PICKED STAFF SAILING ON THE SS. BALTIC FOR ENGLAND

"In compliance with the orders of the President assigning you to the command of the United States forces in France, the Secretary of War directs that you proceed, with the necessary staff, to Paris, France, via England.

"The Secretary of War further directs that, upon your arrival in France, you establish such relations with the French government and the military representatives of the British government now serving in France as will enable you effectively to plan and conduct active operations in conjunction and in co-operation with the French armies operating in France against Germany and her allies.

"As a preliminary step, the Secretary of War deems it desirable that you have a thorough study made of the available bases, lines of communication and camps of instruction, so that you may direct preparations for the arrival of successive contingents of our troops in France.

"The equipment and training for active service of the troops under your command in the trenches or on the firing line should be carried on as rapidly as possible. While the entrance of our forces into the theater of active operations will be left entirely to your judgment, it should not be unduly hastened. Yet it is believed that the purpose of your presence in France will be materially advanced by the appearance of our troops upon the firing line.

Conflictions

Different Views Noted In Instructions

I have never understood why there should have been two letters of instructions emanating from the same authority. However, they are both admirable examples of the powers that should be vested in a commander in the field, and were not of a character to embarrass in any essential.

The insertion of the directions contained in Paragraph 5 of the Secretary's letter regarding the identity of our forces was prompted by the efforts which had been made by both the British and French Missions to have the United States utilize her man power as replacements for the Allies. But the policy of eventually building up an independent American army had been discussed and was fully understood by the Secretary of War and myself.

As to co-operation, the instructions contained in the two letters are apparently in conflict. According to the Secretary's letter it might be that our armies would actually serve in conjunction with any of the Allied armies. According to the letter of the Chief of Staff it would be limited to service in co-operation with the French Army.

However, the general character of our mission was such as to justify a close co-operation with any of the Allied armies in France, according to circumstances.

Sails on Baltic

Secrecy Prevails as Party Leaves

On the date of my sailing, May 28, 1917, my party assembled at Governors Island, New York. All had been instructed to proceed with the utmost secrecy, even wearing civilian clothes until they were aboard the steamship Baltic.

Although we ourselves stole silently out through the fog and down the bay, the large number of transatlantic liners and other vessels stationed near New York dashing around in uniform rather ostentatiously that day really amounted to an announcement something out of the ordinary was happening.

But it must be said to the credit of the press representatives that we were most discreetly treated. The papers generally published nothing about us until we were in Europe.

During the voyage most of my time was spent in conference with the heads of staff departments regarding their duties and plans. The study of French was taken up by many officers and classes were in session at all hours.

Given Reception

Americans Are Welcomed In England

June 6 the Baltic began to zig-zag and we realized we were in the danger zone. Next morning an escort of two American destroyers gave us something of a thrill and fully restored confidence. No submarines were observed, however, and the weather was perfect throughout the voyage.

We steamed into Liverpool

Mr. Page.

[illegible] Sec. Lord French, Gen. [illegible] Lord Reading, Walter Hines Page, the American Ambassador, Gen. John J. Pershing and members of the staff of General Pershing and American officials.

I was received by King George at Buckingham Palace June 9. His Majesty was in the uniform of a Field Marshal and he talked with me in the most democratic fashion for a few minutes before the other senior officers of my staff were presented. The King expressed [illegible] pleasure that America had come to the assistance of the Allies, upon the ground that Anglo-Saxon people were interested in the same cause.

"The Anglo-Saxon race must save civilization," he added.

Certainly His Majesty did not appear optimistic over the outlook, and asked me many questions about America's preparations for war. As to [illegible] he had heard through

CITY AIDS FIGHT ON MINE FIRE

City Council has informed Crafton borough that the city will pay one-half the expense of extinguishing the mine fire under the property of the McShane heirs now burning near the boundary line of Crafton and the Twenty-eighth Ward.

Dry weather has speeded the flames, according to residents in the neighborhood, and immediate action is needed. Robert Chess, borough solicitor of Crafton, will report the city's offer to borough officials and confer with owners of the property on methods of fighting the fire.

Argentina Acts In Stock Slump

BUENOS AIRES, Jan. 15.—(INS.)—Effective measures designed to end the activities of speculators and the wild fluctuations of the past few days will probably be instituted by the government today.

The recent severe slump in exchange, which in one week carried the paper peso from 31.4 United States cents to 29.2, was blamed on panicky buying and speculation.

COLDS MAY DEVELOP INTO PNEUMONIA

Coughs from colds may lead to serious trouble. You can stop them now with Creomulsion, an emulsified creosote that is pleasant to take. Creomulsion is a medical discovery with two fold action; it soothes and heals the inflamed membranes and inhibits germ growth.

Of all known drugs creosote is recognized by high medical authorities as one of the greatest healing agencies for coughs from colds and bronchial irritations. Creomulsion contains, in addition to creosote, other healing elements which soothe and heal the inflamed membranes and stop the irritation, while the creosote goes on to the stomach, is absorbed into the blood, attacks the seat of the trouble and checks the growth of the germs.

Creomulsion is guaranteed satisfactory in the treatment of coughs from colds, bronchitis and minor forms of bronchial irritations, and is excellent for building up the system after colds or flu. Money refunded if not relieved after taking according to directions. Ask your druggist.

Hard, Large Red Pimples Over Forehead. Healed by Cuticura.

SUNSHINE MELLOWS

Heat Purifies

LUCKIES are always kind to your throat

Everyone knows that sunshine mellows—that's why the "TOASTING" process includes the use of the Ultra Violet Rays. LUCKY STRIKE—the finest cigarette you ever smoked, made of the finest tobaccos—the Cream of the Crop—THEN—"IT'S TOASTED." Everyone knows that heat purifies and so "TOASTING"—that extra, secret process—removes harmful irritants that cause throat irritation and coughing.

The advice of your physician is: Keep out of doors, in the open air, breathe deeply; take plenty of exercise in the mellow sunshine, and have a periodic check-up on the health of your body.

When Your Cough Hangs On, Mix This at Home

The best cough remedy that money could buy, can easily be mixed at home. It saves money and gives you the most reliable, quick-acting medicine you ever used. The way it takes hold of stubborn coughs and chest colds, giving immediate relief, is astonishing.

Any druggist can supply you with 2½ ounces of Pinex. Pour this into a pint bottle, and fill up with plain granulated sugar syrup or strained honey. It's no trouble at all to mix, and when you once use it, you will never be without it. Keeps perfectly and tastes good—children really like it.

It is surprising how quickly this loosens the germ-laden phlegm, and soothes and heals the inflamed membranes. At the same time, part of the medicine is absorbed into the blood, where it acts directly on the bronchial tubes, and helps the system throw off the whole trouble. Even those severe coughs which follow cold epidemics, are promptly ended.

Pinex is a highly concentrated compound of genuine Norway Pine, containing the active agent of creosote, in a refined, palatable form. Nothing known in medicine is more helpful in cases of severe coughs, chest colds and bronchial troubles.

Do not accept a substitute for Pinex. It is guaranteed to give prompt relief or money refunded.

AVOID UGLY BLEMISHES

Does a pimply face embarrass you? Get a package of Dr. Edwards Olive Tablets. The skin should begin to clear after you have taken the tablets a few nights, if you are like thousands of others.

Help cleanse the blood, bowels and liver with Dr. Edwards Olive Tablets, the successful substitute for calomel; there's no sickness or pain after taking them.

Dr. Edwards Olive Tablets do that which calomel does, and just as effectively, but their action is gentle and safe instead of severe and irritating.

Thousands who take Olive Tablets are never cursed with a "dark brown taste," a bad breath, a dull, listless, "no good" feeling, constipation, torpid liver, bad disposition, pimply face.

Olive Tablets are a purely vegetable compound, known by their olive color.

Dr. Edwards spent years among patients afflicted with liver and bowel complaints and Olive Tablets are the immensely effective result. Take nightly for a week. See how much better you feel and look. 15c, 30c, 60c.

To Relieve Catarrhal Deafness and Head Noises.

Persons suffering from catarrhal deafness and head noises will be glad to know that this distressing affliction can usually be successfully treated at home by an internal medicine that in many instances has effected complete relief after other treatments have failed. Numbers who could scarcely hear have had their hearing restored to such an extent that the tick of a watch was plainly audible seven or eight inches away from either ear. Therefore if you know of someone who is troubled with head noises or catarrhal deafness, cut out this paragraph and hand it to them, and you may have been the means of saving some poor sufferer, perhaps from total deafness. The medicine can be prepared at home and is made as follows:

Secure from all Mayer & Liggett's drug stores or send direct to Parmint, Chicago, Ill., 1 ounce of Parmint (Double Strength). Take this home, and add to it a pint of hot water and a little sugar, stir until dissolved. Take one tablespoonful four times a day.

Parmint is used in this way not only to reduce by tonic action the inflammation and swelling in the Eustachian Tubes, and thus to equalize the air pressure on the drum, but to correct any excess of secretions in the middle ear, and the results it gives are nearly always quick and effective.

Every person who has catarrh should give this prescription a trial.

PROF. EINSTEIN IN RADIO SPEECH

WE NOW PRESENT

By DARRELL V. MARTIN
Radio Editor

Relativity genius Prof. Albert Einstein, speaking at 8:30 tonight, will be heard in Pittsburgh at 11:30. The relativity concept time and the fourth dimension, for the Belgian mathematician will be explained in three hours late when he talks to you tonight from Pasadena. It is hard to understand just his theory part of which he explained in German over WJAS at 12:00. The talk will be translated into English.

Other outstanding events tonight are Rudolph Crook on KDKA at 6:00 with the Dixie Song Bird in the Silence of the Night" and "When You're Away" balanced with a lighter type of entertainment by Aileen Stanley on WCAE at 8:45, guest of Rose Valley.

A "singing" and "talking" radio pillow for use in hospitals and Pullman cars is the latest. Although sound permeates the pillow it cannot be heard except by resting the head on the pillow.

Still a bottle one is the dispatch from Bruno Cosolosaka that the time signal consists of the musical note A so that visitors of the town can tune their instruments at specific hours of the day.

QUESTION A DAY

Are Gene and Glenn married and what are their ages? C. M.

Answer—Both married and in their early thirties.

"BY THE WAY"

Dick Powell went to Atlantic City last night for a rest. Back on the air late next week. James Francis Burke speaks on "Unemployment" over WCAE at 8 p. m. Saturday. We had the niblick all ready for Bobby Jones last night but learned that golf is played with a driver.

The people in the funny paper are being made up for radio circulation. Rev. John W. Sproul has appealed the examiner's report that WMBJ be denied renewal of its license on January 31.

"Young" Stribling challenger of Max Schmeling heavyweight champion of the world is to discuss his aspiration over WCAE next Wednesday night at 10:30.

The broadcast will be in the form of an interview with Bill Munday asking the questions. Mary Garden tells what she thinks of "Singing as a Career" over WJAS tomorrow afternoon at 2:30.

Incidentally—WJAS—we liked Grace Royall Ellis of McKeesport, with her "Inspirational Moments" the other day. Maurice Chevalier (KDKA next Wednesday at 9:30) once was a carpenter's helper at 72 cents a week and was fired! Bobby Meeker is on the Far North program this Saturday.

TODAY'S TID BIT

A fish horn in the key of A flat is being sought by Warren Wade of the WTAM Dramatic Department. Tired of "The Peanut Vendor" he has decided to give the fish peddler a break and need the horn to write the lyric.

BROTHER OF 2 STARS FREED

CHICAGO, Jan. 15.—(AP.)—Gerald Noonan, 32, who says he is a brother of Sally O'Neill and Molly O'Day, motion picture stars, was discharged by Judge Harry M. Fisher from a confidence game charge brought by Mrs. Trude Morris of Madison, Wis.

The court upheld Noonan's assertion that he acted in good faith when he indorsed a check from Mrs. Morris to Stanley Dunleys. Noonan said:

"I knew Dunleys for several years, so, when he asked me to indorse the check for him, I did it. I know nothing of the manner in which he obtained the check."

Cuban Revenue Bill Taxes Burial Gifts

HAVANA, Jan. 15.—(AP.)—Cuba faces its first income tax in a bill which was suggested by President Machado. It has already been passed by the Senate and is expected to be approved by the House in a few days. A sliding scale of rates from 2 to 10 per cent on incomes and salaries from $1,200 a year upward will be levied.

Other features of the measure provide taxes on corporations, inheritances, property transfers, contracts, luxuries, theater tickets, automobiles, airplanes and floral offerings at funerals.

The LOUDSPEAKER

By LOUIS REID

NEW YORK, Jan. 15.—[illegible] word "jazz" remains dishonored [illegible] must not be listed on the schedules.

* * *

But though it is covered up by the word "novelty," it is still "jazz," and jazz it will remain. It is too vivid, too biting a word to be killed by the academicians of the air waves.

* * *

Too long has there been an effort on the part of maestros who broadcasters alike to see in jazz some degeneration of musical taste. Many of them strangely, have refused to recognize its originality, its development of something of genuine value to American music. They shy at it waiting for some outstanding figure of music to elude it when they will quickly fall in line.

* * *

Of all band leaders, in or out of jazz, John Philip Sousa has played before more people than any other director in the history of music.

* * *

Time has dealt kindly with Sousa. Nearly 74 years old, he travels year after year about the country directing his band as precise as military in his style as ever. Sousa has had no little share in developing and reflecting the national gusto of America. His stirring marches—all marches have been anti-climaxes since his—accompanied the amazing industrial growth of the country, its rapid increase in vigor and happy-go-lucky urbanity.

[illegible]

Forming one-third of all the programs of the broadcasters, jazz is now definitely high hat. It is all dressed up in cutaways and striped trousers and on its feet are the whitest of spats.

[illegible]

Today jazz is emphasizing melody rather than noise and to make sure noise does not raise again its ugly head it is discarding horns and substituting pipe organs and accordions. It is bringing violins and cellos, believe it or not, to the position once held by the drums.

* * *

The maestro's [illegible] to the dance [illegible] today represents a [illegible] another age music. [illegible] in fox trot rhythm as in the measures of the waltz. And the dance music which echoes through the palaces of America is it seems to me, the most definite contribution which radio broadcasting is making today. Still the broadcasters continue to hush. BREMERTON, Wash., Jan. 15 (AP).—The new 10,000-ton cruiser U. S. S. Louisville will "join the Navy" here today when Rear Admiral Edward H. Campbell, Thirteenth Naval District commandant, delivers the vessel to her master, Capt. Edward J. Marquart. A crew of 400 will man the ship.

JUDGE GREETS WAR 'BUDDY'

Memories of the days spent in France were discussed yesterday by Judge J. Frank Graff, of Armstrong, assisting local jurists in Criminal Court here and John R. Dixon, of 816 South Braddock avenue. During the war the jurist was Maj. John F. Graff and Dixon was a sergeant. During the discussion, Serg. Dixon reminded Judge Graff that the last time they had met was in France.

The meeting between the two soldiers was arranged by Maj. John H. Shenkel, who is chief clerk in Criminal Court. Dixon at one time had been a member of Shenkel's regiment, the One Hundred and Eleventh of the Twenty-eighth Division, but later had been transferred to Graff's company, Company D, One Hundred and Twelfth Regiment of the same division.

Graff enlisted as a private in Company K, in his home town, Kittanning. During the capture of the town of Chateau Cherilly, Graff, for a time was in charge of the regiment, due to the decimation of officers.

DEFUNCT BANK INQUIRY ASKED

CONNELLSVILLE, Pa., Jan. 15 (AP)—Action to obtain investigation into affairs of the defunct Title and Trust Company of Western Pennsylvania, which closed June 30, has been begun by a group of depositors. The group elected Alderman W. H. Showman president, R. T. Cunningham secretary, and Charles C. Mitchell former mayor, treasurer.

The action followed filing of a statement of the bank's financial status in the prothonotary's office at Uniontown, showing funds of the institution had almost entirely disappeared.

An initial dividend of 40 per cent has been paid by the Union National Bank, which closed July 1. The defunct Citizens National Bank is expected to pay its first dividend next month.

Mother Song Appeal Held to Be on Wane

CHICAGO, Jan. 15—(AP)—The religious appeal of mother songs has waned, the Rev. George Dibble, a singing evangelist, has found. He believes the reason is that "mothers aren't the same these days."

He said:

"'Tell Mother I'll be There' once was the biggest puller we had. Now it doesn't pull at all.

"'Just as I Am' has sung more people into the kingdom of heaven than any other song."

Other present-day evangelistic favorites are "Old Rugged Cross," "In the Garden" and "Since Jesus Came Into My Heart."

Use Artificial Sun To Brand Babies

NEWARK, N. J., Jan. 15—(AP)—Mothers and babies are being branded by artificial sun rays at the Newark Beth Israel Hospital. Dr. Paul Keller, executive director of the hospital, believes the method of identification is almost infallible.

An ultra violet ray stencil marks either the child's or its mother's initials. Nearly 400 Newark infants have been identified by this method.

SLIGHT DROP IN EMPLOYMENT

WASHINGTON, Jan. 15—(AP)—A decrease of one per cent in employment and 0.4 per cent in payroll totals for December under November was reported today by the Bureau of Labor Statistics.

A caution was added, however, that this figure was based only on establishments reporting and was not weighted according to the relative importance of each group.

Gains were shown in two groups. Retail trade up 17 per cent and anthracite mining 2 per cent. Bituminous coal mining was virtually unchanged and the remaining 12 divisions showed losses.

School Heads Tell Women Of Work

One of the most interesting sessions the department of education, Congress of Clubs, has ever had was that of yesterday. After the invocation by Mrs. Ralph W. Johnston, Congress president, and the flag salute led by Mrs. Hubert W. Chapman, a number of guests were introduced by Mrs. D. Edwin Miller, chairman of the department.

Those so honored were Miss Grace Swan, president of the Association of Administrative Women in Education; Miss Matilda Milholland, principal of Lincoln School; Miss Jane Bryce, principal of the Girls' Vocational School; Miss Anne Lafferty, principal of Friendship School; Miss Emily Wolfe, president of the Principals' Club; Mrs. Mary J. Cowley, of the Board of Education, and Mrs. A. C. Manning, vice president of the American Association of University Women.

Mrs. Charles S. Long, chairman of the division of correction and restoration in the State Federation; Mrs. John M. Phillips, chairman of the home department of the Federation, and Miss Evelyn Carpenter, of Philadelphia, of the State Council for the Blind, each spoke briefly of her work.

Of chief interest, however, were the demonstrations of work done among the blind and deaf. B. F. Joice, superintendent of the Western Pennsylvania School for the Blind, told of the work done there and introduced several pupils from the school who gave an interesting program of readings and music. Then A. C. Manning, superintendent of the School for the Deaf, explained the work of his institution and something of its problems and, with the aid of three pupils, gave a demonstration of lip reading.

Art in the public schools is the subject for February's meeting of the department. Miss Jean Thoburn, of Peabody High School, and T. Ralph Lids, of Herron Hill High School, being the speakers.

DESIGNERS PRESENT LATEST MODE IN SPORT ENSEMBLES

Sketched in Paris

Paris Bureau, Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph.

PARIS, Jan. 15—The Southland sun will shine on some delightful sport ensembles this season. Every house has been busy creating costumes and outfits that, while suitable for walking and other forms of sport, make their appeal through their nonchalant youthfulness, neatness and easy charm. The severe type of sports ensemble has vanished, we hope never to return. And so has the silly, fluffy type of sports suit that was not only just as ugly, but entirely out of keeping with the occasions for which it was designed. Skirts are of sensible length and, while not bulky, are quite comfortable for walking purposes. Sun-ray pleats, box pleats in clever groupings and set-in pieces are some of the means by which sufficient width is obtained. Wool jersey in tweedy weaves is much liked as well as the ordinary jersey stitch and color mixtures are prominent. The little suits that are now dotting the Southern resorts will no doubt make the same appeal later in the season for town wear, for they have so much to recommend them.

* * *

MIRANDE MAKES the sports ensemble shown at the left, and it is intended of course for Southern wear. The fabric is a mixed green wool jersey, which is a good choice for it is not always as warm and sunny in the South as the travel booklets describe it. And so the wool jersey in a loose and rather knotty weave is ideal for the youthful, straight little jacket and the skirt with its sun-burst folds. The skirt is set on to a wide belt of the jersey and the blouse is of green satin, which has a shoulder yoke forming one piece with the large scarf tied in a jaunty bow-knot.

* * *

PATOU IS SHOWING a tailored dress in brown and beige woolen with a tunic bodice belted rather high. White pique makes the round, flat collar and tab ends. It also borders the slashed cuffs. The skirt is laid in box-pleats stitched to a point about half way down the skirt.

12 BILLION ROAD WORK URGED

ST. LOUIS, Jan. 15.—(INS.)—A $12,000,000,000 road construction program as an aid to relieve unemployment had been advanced at the twenty-eighth annual meeting of the American Road Builders Association here today.

The program would be financed by federal, state and county governments using a system similar to that employed for the issuance of Liberty Bonds during the World War.

Charles H. Davis, of New York, president of the National Highway Association, advocated the mammoth road building program at the annual banquet. The federal government would issue $6,000,000,000 in bonds, to be matched by an equal amount of bonds financed by the county and state.

WILL QUIZ ROOT ON COURT PLAN

WASHINGTON, Jan. 15.—(Universal.)—The League of Nations Court will bob to the surface temporarily next week when Elihu Root, joint author of the new formula for getting the United States into the court, appears as a witness before the Senate Foreign Relations Committee.

Root has been invited to appear at an open session of the committee next Wednesday. He will be questioned about the Root-Hurst formula now being proposed as a substitute for reservation five, which the Senate adopted in 1926.

Hearing Root at this time does not alter the committee's previous decision to postpone a report on the court until the regular session next December. The postponement vote was carried several weeks ago, 10 to 9.

214 Turk Moslems Tried as Traitors

ISTANBUL, Jan. 15.—(AP.)—Death as traitors today threatened 214 die-hard followers of Islam as a Turkish military court at Menemen began trial of dervishes, sheiks, priests and civilians, including 16 women, implicated in the religious uprising here December 23. It was believed the death penalty will be inflicted upon the chief offenders. Others are being arrested daily in Turkey in connection with the attempted holy war against the Kemalist republic.

Victoria Rejects Beer Sale by Glass

VICTORIA, B. C., Jan. 15.—(AP.)—Victoria residents voted by a majority of 1,713 yesterday against sale of beer by the glass. Under the government liquor control act, sale of beer by the glass in a public place is allowed only after a majority of the residents of a city or town vote in favor of such sale.

'REALISM' HIT IN RADIO TALK

Realism is nothing but sensualism parading under a new name, according to C. C. Crawford, county evangelist of the Christian Churches of Allegheny County, in an address delivered over radio station KQV today.

Denouncing many of the well-known authors and public figures who are known as "realistic," Crawford said that if Sinclair Lewis' writings are a true mirror of American life our civilization is degenerate. Others with whom he disagrees include Carl Sandburg, noted poet; Judge Ben Lindsay, advocate of companionate marriage, Eugene O'Neill, playwright, and Clarence Darrow, famous criminal lawyer.

Dog Goes Mad, Bites Man, Many Animals

WOODRUFF, S. C., Jan. 15.—(AP.)—A mad dog went on a rampage here today, biting one man, 75 dogs, a mule, four hogs and a goose. The dog was killed several hours later after a hunt over a six-mile territory.

Florida Golfers Wait Arrival of Mrs. Edison

FORT MYERS, Fla., Jan. 15.—(AP.)—Golfers of the winter colony are awaiting the arrival of Mrs. Thomas A. Edison with her husband.

Mrs. Edison played her first game during her vacation here last February and became so enthusiastic that she ordered a set of clubs. With her sister, Mrs. H. Kelly Hitchcock, of Pittsburgh, she visited the course as the guest of Mrs. Robley D. Newson and was persuaded to try the game. On the first round she averaged 11 strokes to the hole, but soon showed improvement.

Mr. Edison has never had time to play the game, he says, and gets his recreation while in Florida from reading and motoring.

THEATERS YIELD TO SCALPERS

NEW YORK, Jan. 15.—(AP.)—The League of New York Theaters has quit the ticket business and left it wholly to brokers.

The action was announced after a meeting of the league at which the resignation of Harlow D. Savage as executive secretary was accepted.

The group has been fighting more than a year to cut the profit made by brokers. Dr. Henry Moskowitz, named to succeed Savage in an "advisory" capacity, announced brokers had agreed to handle tickets at a maximum of 75 cents above box office prices. This, he said, was much below the figure charged when the league launched its work.

Radio Under Ban For Rum Jurors

BOSTON, Jan. 15.—(INS.)—Warning was issued to the Garrett case jury today by Presiding Judge Patrick M. Keating not to listen to radio broadcasts concerning the case or to read newspaper accounts of the trial of the former police liquor raider, Mrs. Garrett, and Miss Lillian V. Hatch, coatroom attendant at a hotel, charged with conspiracy against John F. Sullivan, proprietor of the hotel.

"I cannot help telling how good ACIDINE is," says J. F. McCarthy, of Dorchester, Mass. "I had been troubled with an acid stomach for the last ten years, and as I am a salesman I think my condition used to hurt my production. Now after using two boxes of ACIDINE, I feel fit as a fiddle.

"Almost everyone who takes ACIDINE raves about it. More than two million packages have been sold. It's a absolutely safe. It's the way this new prescription succeeds when other known remedies fail.

CHURCH SUED OVER 4 LOTS

William Carson, Pine Township, has filed an injunction suit in Common Pleas Court against the First Methodist Protestant Church of Allegheny, to restrain the congregation from selling four lots in North street, Laurel Gardens, Ploy Pass, Pine Township, which he said he had given it and on which the church had agreed to erect a mission. He also asks that the deed be cancelled.

Carson says he made a verbal contract with J. Robert Caskey Clark, agreeing to give the lots provided the congregation would build the mission church within a year. He delivered the deed June 21, 1927, he declares, but $1,800 is still owing as the consideration, but according to Carson no money was paid or demanded.

Carson's suit asserts collections were taken for a building fund, but the congregation has since abandoned Laurel Gardens as a mission field and failed to carry out its plan for building.

Hearings for Youths Arrested for Parading

SIDEWALKS of PITTSBURGH

By William Pfarr

William Pfarr

A story we used about the alertness with which merchandise people watch out for slick crooks reminded somebody of an incident which happened some time ago.

A lady went into a store and purchased a coat costing $1,000. She paid cash, a $1,000 bill. The clerk politely said she would have to get the money verified as the help had instructions to accept no large bills unless checked or verified. The lady wanted to know at once whether she looked like a counterfeiter. The customer was mollified, at least, until the bill was presented to the expert, who said it was all right.

By that time the customer changed her mind. She'd be darned if she was going to be humiliated. They could keep the coat and she'd keep the once-suspect $1,000. She fluffed out.

The next day a nice looking man, with a kind, honest face, went to the store. Apologetic, he explained his wife still wanted the coat, but she could not bring herself to give in and make the purchase herself. He wondered if he could make the purchase and make his wife happy again. He could. He laughingly remarked that his wife was almost ashamed when she handed him the $1,000 with which to buy the coat. The coat was wrapped, the $1,000 was paid.

This time, however, it was not verified, and of course the $1,000 bill the man turned over was a "phoney."

A delegation from one of the suburbs was before Council's recreation budget committee, pleading for bigger and better playgrounds.

"Why," protested a woman delegate, "we only have one policeman in our district. And when he goes by it's such a sight that the children all start shouting and we rush to the windows to see what he looks like."

"Madame," retorted Councilman Herron, "that is one form of recreation we cannot be charged with."

R. L. McCarty, McKeesport insurance man, wins the cup for his example of the late Kin Hubbard's best humor. His favorite is:

"It takes years o' idleness to make a good checker player."

War stories are enjoying a revival, probably due to Gen. Pershing's memoirs. And that reminds Maj. John Shenkel, of the courthouse, of what was probably the most unusual enlistment in the army during the war.

Maj. Shenkel and Steve Madden, the Aspinwall citizen, were part of the cavalry outfit moving by train to Texas for training.

The outfit was passing through Hagerstown, Md., when all eyes were attracted by a mob chasing a little fellow out of town. The little fellow hopped the train and announced he wanted to enlist. The mob stormed the train, but Madden informed them that their fugitive was now in charge of the government. Madden learned later that the new soldier had been umpiring a ball game and was being chased out of town for bad decisions. The new soldier went to France.

WILL ROGERS SAYS

COLUMBUS, O., Jan. 15.

To the Editor, Sun-Telegraph:

Boy, maybe you think it ain't cold back East. Me and my light Hollywood suit. The cut is perfect but it just lacks depth. Scenically it's a dream, but physically its uninhabitable.

Will Rogers

Flying all day over Oklahoma and the poor red clay hills of Missouri and then Indiana, looking down on those dejected, desolate anemic-looking rented farmhouses. Nowhere to work and no crops for six months yet. You don't wonder how they eat, you wonder how they keep warm. If the government thinks its unsound to feed 'em, maybe it could compromise with its conscience by giving 'em some coal.

Yours, WILL.

BUY FLOWERS FOR IDOL WITH PENNIES

Veteran of City Force Hit On Penn Avenue Dies: Driver Held for Coroner

The children of Woolslair School willingly gave up their pennies today to buy flowers for their idol, Patrolman Peter J. Waters, killed last night when he was struck by an auto. The teachers, too, sent another floral piece.

And after school many of the pupils walked to the Waters home in North Atlantic avenue to pay their respects to their late good friend.

GUARDED PUPILS

It was Waters, father of seven children, who guided the pupils across Fortieth street and Liberty avenue each day to their classrooms.

Waters died in St. Francis Hospital, his skull fractured, two hours after he had been struck by an auto driven by Peter Meshanko, 24, of Willard street, at Penn avenue and Forty-fourth street, police reported. Meshanko was held for the coroner.

Matthew Burney, 24, of State street, Oakdale, was killed when struck by an automobile on Noblestown road, near Oakdale, last night. The driver, according to Chief Charles Lemon, of McDonald police, was J. B. Aiken, of Midway. Aiken was ordered to report to the coroner.

FOUR HURT IN COLLISION

Three women and a man were cut and bruised early today in a collision of automobiles at Baum boulevard and Graham street. The injured are Mrs. Florence Davis, 38, of 1144 North Negley avenue, Mr. and Mrs. Ben Vatz, 33, of 816 Jancey street, and Miss Mary Ann Gideon, 23, of Washington, Pa.

Mrs. Davis and Mr. and Mrs. Vatz were riding in an automobile driven by Dr. I. Davis, of the Negley avenue address, when it collided with a car driven by J. G. Taylor, 26, of Washington, Pa., in which Miss Gideon was a passenger. Taylor was charged with violating the automobile laws.

BROOKLINE FOLK TO FIGHT SITE OF SCHOOL

Meeting Called for Friday Night; Danger to Pupils Seen in Crossing Street

A mass meeting to protest against the site of a South Hills junior high school, planned by the Board of Education, at West Liberty avenue and Pauline street, has been called by Brookline citizens.

The meeting will begin at 8 o'clock Friday night in the Brookline School, Pioneer avenue. Thomas J. Herron, member of the Brookline Board of Trade, said objections will be registered not only to the site planned, but also to the city tax assessment increase which, he said, has been 100 per cent in some places.

The chief objection to the proposed site of the Junior High School, Herron said, was that Brookline children would be compelled to cross West Liberty avenue, "the worst traffic trap in the city," he said.

"It's commonplace to see trucks and autos piled up, on and over the sidewalks and speeding along this thoroughfare. It would be the worst type of danger to send children across this street. Furthermore, Brookline's schools are filled to capacity. They need more school space. We are not setting up ourselves as authorities as to how the school board shall fill the need, but feel that the site planned is undesirable."

INCLINE MISHAP KILLS ENGINEER

John L. Snyder, 66, of 211 Sycamore street, Mt. Washington, who for 32 years had been an engineer at the throttle in the cab house of the Monongahela Incline, was dead today, a victim of an accident in the engine room last night.

Mr. Snyder

Snyder had finished working and prepared to go home. As he passed the machinery in the engine room at the head of the plane, his clothing became caught. He was pulled into the moving gears and crushed to death.

Snyder's body was found by Harry Weiss, a fireman, of 224 Ulysses street, when he reported for work. Snyder, a life-long resident of Pittsburgh, was known to hundreds of incline riders.

Mrs. Amelia D. Dooley, 1617 Lowrie street, North Side, during hearing of her divorce case against Howard J. Dooley, a druggist, when Judge James H. Gray asked her why her husband had simply walked out on her, said:

"He left me because he said he wanted to go out and have a good time. That is the only explanation I have."

They were married in December, 1922, and lived with the wife's mother until they separated, in September, 1928.

MOTHER OF SIX CUT, MAN HELD

Her skull fractured in two places, Mrs Freda Cory, 29, of 140 Station street, Aliquippa, mother of six children, today fought for life in a ward bed in the Rochester General Hospital.

Meanwhile, her alleged assailant, John Kalile, 31, a roomer in the Cory home, who slashed his throat, police say, after the all-d attack yesterday, lay shackled in the men's ward in the same hospital. The condition of both was said to be critical.

Police say Kalile beat the woman with a hammer and slashed her with a clasp knife in her home yesterday. According to Elizabeth, 12, oldest daughter of Mrs. Cory, her mother resented Kalile's attentions. The attack occurred a short time after the husband and father, Samuel Cory, 31, had left for work.

Kalile ran from the house after the alleged attack but returned when police arrived. He staggered into the house and told police a stranger had attacked him and Mrs. Cory. His story was discounted by police who say they discovered a bloodstained knife, said to be owned by Kalile in a vacant lot adjoining the Cory home.

CITY STARTS QUIZ IN AID PLEAS

Needy Cases Reported by Reds Investigated; Four Families Often Given Aid

Two leaders of yesterday's frustrated "hunger march" were fined and six other men, mostly bystanders, were discharged in Central Police Court today as the City Welfare Department checked on cases of alleged neglected needy families cited before Council by a committee of the marchers.

J. I. McDonough, of the Welfare Department, said that of eight cases mentioned by the committee of the Trade Union Unity League, one family had been aided seven times, another 11 times, two others had been repeatedly given relief, and that the department was investigating the remaining four.

Pauline Jurich, 15, formerly of Wilkinsburg High School, now a pupil of a business school and a former waitress in her father's restaurant, 711 Penn avenue, Wilkinsburg, was turned over to Juvenile Court authorities, who released her on her own recognizance until her case is investigated.

Ernest Rymer, 22, of 2002 Webster avenue, arrested at Fernando street and Wylie avenue, where an attempt was made to start a parade yesterday, was fined $10 by Magistrate Leo Rothenberg, after a wrangle.

CARRYING BANNER

Patrolman William Williamson testified that Rymer was carrying a banner, making derogatory remarks about the government and cursing. After being arrested and taken to a patrol boy, the officer testified, Rymer shouted:

"Let's blow up Andy Mellon and their kind."

Rymer said he was a painter out of work and was at present an organizer for the Young Pioneers of America.

Frank Hauer, 18, of 544 Spiral street, arrested along with Rymer, also was fined $10. Both were charged with disorderly conduct.

The following, charged with violating a city ordinance in refusing to move on at command of the police, were discharged:

John Kuloch, 24; Joseph Ladasic, 23, both of Wendel, and Joseph Nitsky, 18, of Adamsburg, all idle coal miners of Westmoreland County; Fred Michael, 35, Negro, 152 Fullerton street; Nasie Ahmad, Negro, 2231 Humber way; Harry Love, 315 Kelly avenue, Wilkinsburg. Love was revealed as a World War veteran. He said he was not a Communist, merely a spectator waiting for the parade which failed to appear downtown.

ADDRESS COUNCIL

Those who presented the case to Council were Robert A. Woods, Fred Kearns, L. A. Weeks, C. Roscoe, V. Kamenevich, Mary Smith and May Field.

The group entered the crowded Council chamber quietly and was granted the right to speak. Woods spoke first, demanding a relief fund to include the money for the $6,000,000 subway, all the increases in the police budget and a part of all the higher paid executives' salaries. He asked $15 a week for every unemployed worker and $3 for each additional dependent.

All was quiet at the Helping Hand, on Water street, during the labor agitation yesterday, according to the Rev. Robert M. Gibson, director.

DARROW'S AID DENIED REDS

Clarence Darrow, famous attorney and agnostic, here today for a religious debate, expressed sympathy in the cause of the hunger paraders arrested here yesterday but did not accede to an appeal of local Communistic leaders that he appear in Central police court in their defense.

The Rev. Dr. Robert MacGowan, pastor of the Bellefield Presbyterian church, who debates tonight with Darrow at Carnegie Music Hall on the question "Is Religion Necessary?", also expressed his interest in the unemployed. Dr. MacGowan was present when Carl C. Hacker, local secretary of the International Labor Defense, made his unsuccessful plea to Darrow. Easter to Mark Passing Of Historic Church

East Liberty Presbyterian's stone church, much of it built in the 80's, will probably hold its last services Easter Sunday.

The work of tearing it down will begin shortly after, it was learned today. Arrangements have been made to hold Sunday school classes in the East Liberty Y. M. C. A., and an East End theater is being discussed as a place of worship.

The abandonment of the present church, at Penn and Highland avenues, will be made necessary by the program for the new $3,000,000 or more church, R. B. Mellon's gift.

The new church, slated to be "the most beautiful in America" was promised by Mr. Mellon last April, when the East Liberty congregation welcomed the gift. Besides being members of this church for four generations, the site is one of further sentimental interest to the Pittsburgh bankers. Their mother, Sarah Jane Negley Mellon, was born on the site and their grandmother, Mrs. Barbara Negley, presented the first church to the little congregation in 1819.

3 ROBBERS FLEE AFTER GUN BATTLE

Superintendent, Tied With Two Others, Frees Self; Robber Answers His Fire

County detectives and police throughout Allegheny Valley today were searching for three bandits who, after holding up the office of the Logan's Ferry Coal Company, at Logan's Ferry, escaped after a gunfight with the mine superintendent late yesterday.

The bandit trio drove up to the office of the coal company in an automobile. Two alighted, entered the office and ordered Edgar Earney, the mine superintendent; Samuel Orr, a foreman, and J. Wiggins, a miner, to hold up their hands.

The three men were bound with rope and wire by one of the robbers, who tore the telephone from the wall. The two then looted a cash box of $350, the day's receipts.

While the cash till was being rifled Earney freed himself and as the bandits started for their automobile the mine official seized a revolver from a desk drawer and opened fire on them. One of the robbers fired back.

Police of the upper valley towns in which direction the trio fled, were warned to watch for them.

Betty Cook, Brothers' fiancee, visited him yesterday in the County jail. It was their first meeting since the suspect was seized four weeks ago. They attempted to recall whether they had been at a farm in Michigan on the day Lingle was shot down. They said they were somewhat uncertain whether they had returned to Chicago before the slaying.

Feel Like A New Man Almost Before You Know It

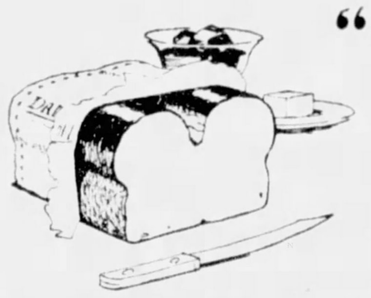
People have found out that new-fangled ideas and notions don't break up colds. So millions have turned back to first principles and use what they know breaks one up in a jiffy. Even a "little" cold is too dangerous to trifle with.

The thing to do is to get Hill's Cascara Quinine at any drug store. Take two tablets now. Then follow directions on box. Drink lots of water, too—that's all.

Soon you'll start to feel like a new person. Things will loosen up, your head will clear; aching go—you'll be back on the job with a wallop.

Get Hill's now. It is a scientific formula made to do one thing well: to knock a cold—not to cure a thousand ailments. Get your money back if it doesn't work with twice the speed of anything else you've ever tried.

HILL'S Cascara Quinine Compound



"MY MOTHER WANTS A LOAF OF DAIRY MAID BREAD. . ."

Johnny wants Dairy Maid too, because this large double loaf furnishes bigger slices upon which to spread heaps more jam.

Johnny's mother wants Dairy Maid because she and the other members of the family like its firm, even texture and its fine, fresh flavor—not to mention its economical price.

Dairy Maid Bread is the large 24 oz. double loaf, made with milk. It is really the greatest bread value of the day. Ask at your nearby A&P store for Dairy Maid Bread—it's fresh today and every day.

DRAMA LEAGUE SPONSORS PLAYWRITING CONTEST; LOCAL THEATER NEWS

Again the Old Question: How's Your Second Act? Stirs the Rialto

By GEORGE SEIBEL.

GET OUT your scripts and rewrite them, for maybe you are the Great American Playwright and don't know it. The Drama League is looking to you again. So much is apparent from the announcement of the annual Play-writing Contests for 1931.

George Seibel

The contest embraces three different sorts of plays—a full-length play that will fill an entire evening, a one-act play that must have something to do with George Washington, and a religious play which must fill the entire evening, must be non-sectarian, but need not be Biblical.

"Modern ethical plays are greatly needed," according to the note on the religious plays. That raises the interesting point, what is an ethical play? "Ten Nights in a Bar Room" might have qualified once upon a time.

The winning plays are sure of production. The author gets $500 advance royalty on the winning full-length play, $100 advance on the winning one act play, and $150 on the winning religious or ethical play.

Longmans, Green & Co. will publish the winning plays in book form, and more information desired by any contestant will be furnished by Miss Norma Lee Sharpless, secretary of the Drama League of New York City, 55 Fifth Avenue, New York City.

The judges are head of writing and English, Yale—Warren Prichard Patty, Stuart Walker, and Edwin Knowles. The other judges are to be announced later. Meanwhile let the aspirants Shakespeare and Sheridan dust their typewriters and begin to hump it. The masterpiece must be in not later than March 31.

DRAMATIST MUSSOLINI

It is too bad that Il Duce cannot compete in that theatrical marathon, for no doubt he would send in a script. Yes, Benito is a playwright as a cable from Guglielmo Emanuel, Rome correspondent of the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph, revealed a few days ago. He is also a violin player, like Charles G. Dawes and Albert Einstein. Wouldn't a trio by these three eminent fiddlers be worth listening to?

Benito has even made the public announcement that critics are welcome to criticise his performance on the violin, but must be careful what they say about his statesmanship.

When I was in Rome a few years ago circumstances presented me meeting Il Duce. But Henry P. Fletcher, then American ambassador, advised me to speak German if I met him. Mussolini speaks German well, and is proud of his familiarity with German classics.

From an actor I heard about Benito's ambitions as playwright. He is like Richelieu, who also wrote tragedies and had them played. Some unkind people also say he is like Napoleon, who took lessons from the famous Talma on how to act the role of emperor.

The Italian actor intimated that Benito Mussolini dramatist had his eyes on the American public. Who knows, the next failure on Broadway by an unknown dramatist may start an international crisis?

BUT NOT PIRANDELLO

Of course there is no suspicion that Pirandello, the Sicilian who wrote "Six Characters in Search of an Author," may be Mussolini in masquerade. But a new Pirandello play is to open in New York City within two weeks.

"As You Desire Me" is the play and Judith Anderson, who followed Lynn Fontanne in "Strange Interlude," will be the star.

Pirandello, who also wrote "Right You Are If You Think You Are," is thought of by his Italian compatriots as a novelist and philosopher rather than as a dramatist. But in America he is thought of only as a dramatist, and as Italy's greatest living dramatist.

Of course the senile egomaniac D'Annunzio would never admit that.

And Benito Mussolini may have some doubts about it also.

NOTES ABOUT SHOWS COMING TO STAGE AND SCREEN

Seats go on sale today in the Shubert Alvin for the one week engagement of "Model Revue," the current success by David Bonn, which comes here Monday. The large cast is headed by Ida Smith, Charles Dale and Alexander Carr.

Schwab and Mandel will sponsor the premiere of the new Fields-Rodgers and Hart musical comedy, "America's Sweetheart," at the Nixon next Monday night. Seats are now on sale.

Mystery plays, such as "The Ninth Guest," to be produced by George Sharp in the Pitt next week, present more difficulties than any other type of play, it is said. The carpenter, electrician and property men are called upon to make mechanical contrivances such as are used only by magicians and which are destroyed after the Saturday night performance.

ATTRACTIONS TODAY

The Nixon tonight will offer one performance of Ted Shawn and the Denishawn Dancers. The program will include solo and ensemble numbers embracing many novelties from Germany and Spain.

"Bagdad Diplomat," the story of a fiance who was told to kill three beautiful women, comes to the Waring today. Betty Compson, Ed Kyle, Mary Duncan and Jeanette Loff head the cast.

Employment of the Chinese actors and actresses who provide the necessary atmospheric background figures for the Shanghai sequences in "The Man Who Came Back," with Janet Gaynor and Charles Farrell, opening tomorrow in the Penn, was entrusted in the hands of Tom Gubbins, "king" of the Los Angeles Chinatown. Gubbins, who has a list of over 1,000 Orientals capable of and willing to appear before the camera, supplies all of the Chinese seen in pictures.

Between the Acts

Portrait of a ham trying to do his column between blackouts, songs, dances and allegedly witty sayings on the current Palace menu: My frail form is black and blue already from the clowning with the acrobats . . . If I only had some of that an-al-gee-seek that you rub on your skin to erase the aches . . . Oh, well . . . Anything for a laugh . . . I'll never do this again for twice the coin . . . My head hasn't stopped pounding since Wednesday when Arthur Willi, the theater's booker, first Brought The Subject Up. . . . I would have been a chump to spurn all those "cocoanuts." . . . It will pay for the bride's and the kids' holiday at Miami Beach . . . Wonder how June is feeling . . . They didn't tell me about her operation until after I had completed the first long day. Sime, the Variety publisher, was with June, so I'm glad . . . She had someone she knew near her.

I hope he likes the notice he asked me to write about my act. . . . I rapped the boys on the papers who said I was good . . . That ought to teach 'em a lesson, that's what it ought to do . . . They should never be disloyal to their public and subscribers . . . Just because I'm one of the craft doesn't mean that they have to give me a boost when I certainly do not rate one.

I've shelved four and a half pounds since the opening matinee from the strain—the nervousness—the fright—the devastating feeling in the stomach and that something—that tingling feeling that races to the finger tips just before you go out there to be confronted by the Broadway sharpshooters . . . Golly! I never dreamed they would be that affable—that patient—that tolerant! . . . Wonder why they were so nice to me? . . . They went out of their way to give me a break, which is something I certainly never gave any of them . . . Their generosity made me feel so ashamed . . . Remorse set in when I heard that reception . . . I've been such a rat.

Poor Lillian Roth . . . The audience never suspected that those tears she flooded all over the stage were genuine . . . Lilly sings that ballad she warbled in "The Vagabond King" flicker in which she moans about her lover—who is sentenced to death . . . Two moments before she went on Sunday some careless lad let her answer the phone . . . Which let her know that her real sweetheart, her groom to be, had died while under the operating blade. . . . He was only 23, too . . . How she screamed and shrieked in the undressing room . . . Her grief was terrific . . . She adored him so . . . Richman wasted no sympathy on her . . . The rest of us moaned with her, telling her how sorry we were, which was wrong, for it only made her cry all the harder . . . Harry shook her up and yelled:

"None of that stuff, do you hear? This is your life—your job. Audiences never understand . . . They aren't interested in your grief! . . . They came to be amused, entertained and diverted . . . You've got to go out there and sing your head off!"

And so asserting himself Harry shoved her out on to the stage. . . . I never saw such a display of "heart" in my career, or as we vulgarians prefer calling it—"guts!" . . . Her sweetheart was dead up there at the hosp and she had to go out there and make them laugh . . . And applaud . . . And how she did it! . . . Then when she came to that sad song in which she yells: "He was my man! He made me happy! He took my heart! I love him so!"—the tear ducts opened wide and how she wept.

The spectators of course must have said to themselves: "Gee, what an actress. Look at those real tears!" . . . I've written about such things from hearsay before—oh, hundreds of times—about "The show must go on!"—"The Curtain Must Go Up!" . . . That was the first time I got a close-up of it . . . Hellinger would have given me his right arm for that story—for his Saturday page.

It was nice of "J. G." (James Gow) of The World to give me a break in his review of the show . . . He said I had "savoir-faire" and that I was pleasant, etc. . . . I must send him a note of thanks . . . I never expected a break from his rag . . . Which I have slugged from time to time because it permitted one of its staff (who had it in for me) to put words into a star's mouth, which she has told friends again and again (and which she told me) she never said . . . At any rate they let the 20-year-old critic say some nice cracks about me.

But I must give him a little lesson in journalism, which, perhaps, he will be grateful for some day . . . He devoted part of his notice to slipping me for something I was not guilty of . . . He said that I obviously faked a wire of congrats from George S. Kaufman, the author of "Once In a Lifetime" and other hits . . . He was so positive in his statement . . . He bawled me out so . . . I suppose someone steered him wrong—for a purpose . . . But it wasn't a spurious telegram, at all . . . And a good reporter would have invested a nickel and phoned George to check it up—instead of rushing into print and making me look like a fabricator.

I will give a grand (or more) to any charity if "J. G." can show that it wasn't a legitimate wire from Kaufman . . . If he cannot find Kaufman to check up on it then let him inquire at the Postal Telly general offices and see if Kaufman didn't send me that wire on Jan'y 8—at 5:38 p. m., to the Daily Mirror . . . I don't want to embarrass the kid, but he embarrassed me a little and it's a good thing I have a form of expression to make retort . . . And I want to counsel the aspiring journalist along these lines . . . First get your news right . . . That is, get it right as often as possible. We all make mistakes—that's why they have rubber mats under spittoons . . . Then when you make your readers believe that you are usually accurate—even when you make a boner—they'll still believe you.

I want to throw a cheer at the stage and orchestra crews of "Ballyhoo" who helped Walter Batchelor save that troupe from being dumped into the unemployment army . . . When they learned Walter didn't have enough coin to put up bonds for the chorus, and crews, the boys came forward and furnished their own bonds . . . That's the first time I ever heard of a stage hand or a musician going to such extremes to give an actor a hand.

And I trust that the mob who like me will buy tickets for the Stage Hands' Ball which takes place at Madison Square Garden on February 21, the ducats are only two dollars and you will be assured of a grand show . . . If the stage hands will tolerate it I will be glad to announce some of the acts . . . The theatrical charities will receive some of the proceeds to the affair, which is something else to lustily cheer . . . And to those audiences who didn't throw any tomatoes or humiliate me in any way during my alleged act I bow low and thank them from the bottom of my heart—which anyone will tell you is loaded with cracked ice . . . I didn't deserve the affectionate receptions, and I know it . . . I will try, however, to be a good boy henceforth. But don't depend on me.

CHARLES BICKFORD WILL REFORM, SO GETS JOB BACK

By HARRISON CARROLL

(Copyright 1931, by Premier Syndicate.)

HOLLYWOOD, Jan. 15.

Red-headed Charles Bickford has promised to reform and negotiations are on for him to resume his career at Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer.

It is rumored that his first role will be the heavy in Cecil B. De Mille's "The Squaw Man."

Bickford was a hit from his first screen appearance in "Dynamite," but he criticised fi-l-m colony methods so outspokenly that the studio eventually decided his value as a player did not balance the amount of trouble he caused. A break was the result.

Charles Bickford

His decision to forego being an insurgent will be welcomed by all.

EMBTRRASSING SITUATION

Hollywood is amused over the embarrassing experience of one of the first ladies of the screen.

During Prof. Einstein's visit to the film colony, Universal gave him a special showing of "All Quiet On the Western Front." As the film was being projected, the light suddenly went up, and a famous actress (not a Universal star) was escorted down the aisle to where the great scientist was seated.

"Oh, I'm so glad to meet you, Prof. Einstein," she said cordially.

Unfortunately, all the scientist's politeness could not hide the fact that he did not have an idea who his visitor was.

After a very few moments the lady made a hurried farewell and disappeared.

TICKLING BUSINESS

The problem of satisfying the censor boards of the country leads M. G. M. this week to hang Wallace Beery in three different ways.

One version shows him mount the scaffold and have the noose adjusted around his neck. The picture fades out and you hear the trap sprung.

A second version suggests the whole procedure by silhouette.

For a third version, the camera was placed inside the death cell. As Beery walked out it followed him to the gallows and partly up the steps. The door then closed, shutting off the view. A fadeout followed.

You will see one of these versions in "The Secret Six," a Cosmopolitan production, written by Frances Marion.

BEERY IN AIR FILM

It develops that Lieut. Commander Weed wrote "Sea Eagles" to order for Wallace Beery, who now rides the crest of a popularity greater than he ever knew in the silent days.

Wallace Beery

In this aviation story, Beery plays a chief petty officer whose job it is to break in all the rookies.

George Hill, who did Ramon Novarro's "The Flying Fleet," will direct.

As hitherto reported in these columns, Lieut. Commander Weed is on his way to Panama with a cameraman to get atmosphere shots for the picture.

Ek, as the church's delegate to the annual New York conference of Lutheran churches.

Others elections were David M. Gesphwindt, secretary; Elmer Lumberg and C. W. Lindroth, deacons; Elmer Johnson, trustee; Carl O. Emmstrom, New York conference alternate for Carl A. Ek; David M. Gesphwindt and George M. Gustanson, delegates for the district meeting.

SPEED, SAFETY ON ROAD URGED

ST. LOUIS, Jan. 15.—(AP.)—Speed with safety on the highways were the aims of committees reporting to the twenty-eighth annual convention of the American Road Builders' Association here.

Recent increases in the volume and speed of automobile traffic have created new problems in engineering and economics. The committees reported. Highway guard rails are coming into wider use.

Railway grade crossings are steadily increasing despite the growing number of grade separations, another committee reported. About 240,000 grade crossings exist, the committee said, and pointed out that they cannot be economically eliminated in the near future." The number of fatalities at road crossings has been nearly constant in the last four years, the committee said.

The election of William R. Smith, Meriden, Conn., as president of the association, was announced. Vice presidents elected included Samuel Eckels, chief engineer, Pennsylvania Highway Department.

TELL IT TO SALLY

By SALLY MARTIN

Little Drones Enough to Wreck Any Marriage

Have you a Stick-up Artist in your family?

No, I don't mean a child with a gat, but a second-edition rumbler. A moan a minute little moocher who wants everything in sight and throws a tantrum till she gets it.

Got one of those? Probably. Most families have. So you're going to catch up with Sally's when you read Donna James' "Dear Miss Sally."

"I read your advice all the time, but I have never seen a problem like mine solved, so I'm coming to you myself. To start out with, I am 30 years old and have been married to the best man on earth for nearly two years. Just now he is out of work, so we are living with my mother. I am working myself at present, but I won't be able to for much longer, because we are going to have a stranger in our family soon.

Sisters Present Problem

"Naturally you would think that he is a wonderful husband and something to look forward to. I should be the happiest woman on earth, but I'm not. Here is my trouble.

"When I was first married my husband had a wonderful job, so naturally I had most anything I wanted, especially clothes, and we were foolish, I guess. We didn't look forward to rainy days. And now here they are, and we're none too well fixed for them.

"But the real trouble is my sisters. I have two, one older, one younger. And you'd think that, since they're both working, they'd be able to buy their own clothes, wouldn't you? My oldest sister seems to understand pretty well now how things are, and to do her part, but my youngest sister is just simply terrible. Being the baby of the family, she seems to think she can run everybody and everything in it. And it is simply impossible to keep her in clothes, because she seems to think that she must have a different dress for every party she attends, which is at least once a week.

Refusal Causes Trouble

"So she insists on wearing my clothes in spite of the way my husband and I are fixed. And if anyone objects, she throws a fit. Now she is much larger than I am, and when she squeezes herself into my clothes she simply ruins them. She is also very careless and every time she wears a dress, I have to have it cleaned. She never thinks of paying for that. She has plenty of clothes herself to keep her looking nice, but not enough to suit her ideas.

"Every time I refuse to let her have a dress there is war in the house, and plenty of it. My sister threatens to kill herself or says I wish I was dead, and my mother cries and makes herself sick. All because I won't let my sister wreck another dress. And the worst part of it is she just scratches her arm with a hatpin and runs to work.

"My husband never used to say anything about this, but yesterday, when he was out of work, he spoke about it. He said he didn't see that I shouldn't let her get away with it because we can't afford to buy new things, and won't be able to for some time to come since there'll be three to support soon. Don't you think he's right? Or should I let her wear my clothes and ruin them to save my mother from worry? I only have a few left, too.

"Please don't think she hasn't clothes of her own because she has. If I were Mother, my solution of the problem would be a good old-fashioned spanking. But I'm not, so that's out. Should I put my foot down or not? Please help me. Goodness knows, I need it.

"DONNA."

Should you put your foot down?

You said it, sister! And put it down pronto! You'll have to sometime and it won't get any easier by putting it off. The longer you allow this Baby Bandit to get away with her line the bigger riot she's going to stage later on. And unless she learns a few things before she's much older, she's liable to run up against someone some day who'll knock her loose from her back teeth. So you'll be doing her a real favor if you can iron some of the conceit out of her before it's too late.

Must Be Firm

You needn't quarrel with her. Simply tell her kindly but firmly that your clothes belong to you and she has no right to expect to wear them, ever, much less under the present circumstances. Make her understand that she is a grown woman, too, and should act like one . . . which she obviously isn't doing now.

She'll probably go to mamma for sympathy, as usual. And mamma will likely have more hysterics. But, after all, my dear, you aren't responsible for the results of mamma's foolish mistakes. She made them herself. And bringing Little Sister up to be a cry-baby is one of them. Living with the consequences is her job, not yours. You may be ever so sorry for her, but you can't let that sorrow mess up your own life and interfere with your own baby's future . . . which it will, if you don't watch out!

Stand up for your rights . . . and as soon as you can move to a little home of your own again, where this muddle can't follow you.

Most Important Thing for Youth to Learn Is to Wait, Says Fay King

By FAY KING

Youth is full of plans and impatience.

Everything seems so vitally important. The least delay or hindrance seems so fatal and final.

That is because youth is scarcely more than childhood in which a broken doll is a great tragedy and life and limb are risked to rescue a rubber ball from the midst of traffic.

I do not criticize the attitude of youth. We have all experienced it.

Time changes youth's sense of values. When we are older we can smile to remember what seemed such great disappointments and heartaches.

We often find later in life that the best thing that happened was that we did not get our way in youth.

The most important thing for youth to learn—is to wait!

Madge, Dicky and Lillian Discuss Veritzen Letter

There was that in Dicky's manner as he made his icily courteous query concerning Purnell which warned me that he was on the verge of one of his temporary explosions which used to make life so hectic for me before our "second honeymoon." I knew, of course, that the fatigue of the hurried trip to the farm, together with the journey back again, was in part responsible for his captiousness, and reminded myself when a tiny voice inside murmured that I also was excessively tired, that Dickey had held me tenderly against him so that I could sleep during the entire journey out.

There would be no explosion if a "soft answer" could have a chance to exercise its proverbial mission. I told myself firmly, and spoke with apparent cheerfulness.

"Oh, yes, indeed, I have quite finished my errands. Thank you, Purnell. Good night."

"Good night, Mis' Graham. Good night, everybody." Purnell said with dignity, as he went out of the door and it had barely closed behind him before Dicky gave a raucous laugh.

"Hi, ho, everbody, hi ho," he said in a burlesqued, squeaky falsetto. "Purnell is wasted as a bell-boy. He ought to be on the radio."

"If you weren't giving one of your celebrated imitations of a grizzly with a sore head," Lillian interrupted caustically, "you'd surmise as I do, that Purnell has been doing something nifty in the way of sleuthing. Give us the low down, Madge, while I keep an automatic trained on this husband of yours. He'll get sane in a few minutes. He's just having a little eddy in what he fondly calls his brain. But first, is Noel all right?" I didn't follow you, as you told me to, first, because I saw the Dicky-bird's feathers were ruffling, and second because I wanted to find out what was doing before I toddled away from here."

"I'm glad you didn't come over," I said, "for there are some things I must tell you, and Noel is perfectly all right, behind a locked door, with instructions to pay no attention to any knock, or telephone until you and Harry go over with your keys. Mary, dearest, run along to bed. I give you my word everything will be all right."

Mary docilely slipped away, and when her door had closed I told them of Purnell's discovery that Phil Veritzen had just rented the suite next to the Underwood's, with its unusual facilities for listening to the conversation of anyone in the Underwood apartment.

"That's just so he can hear Noel's voice and assure himself that the boy is there," Lillian said shrewdly.

"I'm not sure," I said uncertainly, "but I think his anxiety is due to his desire to get back in his possession a letter which he wrote Noel."

"Ah!" Lillian breathed. "Now we're smoking out the real cuhlud gentleman in the woodpile. Is that the letter Noel received and burned and which had such a depressing effect on him?"

"The same," I answered. "He told me what was in it tonight. It was a long one, and he had read it many times before he burned it, and he is so familiar with his father's general style that he was able to repeat it almost word for word to me."

"And you're going to pass the recital on?"

There was a slight edge in Dicky's tone, but I saw that his threatened emotional storm had blown over, and his mental barometer was registering around 24 with a chance of going higher.

"Why, if you think I ought to," I turned to him with calculated deference. "It really was an awful letter—hardly a sane one—and Noel is at his wits' end concerning it."

For the fractional part of a second my temperamental Peter Pan was non-plussed. He had not expected so meek an appeal. But his rally was almost instantaneous, and the last bit of his irritation appeared to have vanished with his answer.

"What else can you do?" he asked.

"And for the love of the 12 apostles make it snappy," Lillian adjured.

I talked swiftly, giving them the high spots of the highly threatening letter.

"If Noel only hadn't burned that letter," said Lillian. "But Veritzen doesn't know it. Now if we can only keep him thinking so. What's the idea, Madge? I see you have one."

But a sudden panic seized me at her question. There was a very good reason why I could not tell her before Dicky of the scheme Mary had broached and to which I had tacitly agreed.

Tomorrow's Horoscope

Friday, January 16

The planetary configurations for this day emphasize the importance of diplomacy, conspiracy and intrigue in the profitable negotiation of the affairs. Direct and aggressive measures might be the means of provoking opposition and very inharmonious conditions or decidedly vexatious situations. With tact and policy it may be advisable to seek promotion or favors from employers, but withal there may be some minor sorrows or anxieties, especially for the feminine element.

Those whose birthday it is may have a year in which secret matters may prosper or those affairs in which intrigue and stratagem may be employed rather than open and direct methods. There are favors or preferment from employers, but in all things shun dispute and friction, as these may bring defeat as well as anxiety and sorrow.

A child born on this day may be disposed to be subtle, mysterious and peculiar, attaining its ends by intrigue and strategy rather than direct methods. It may be idealistic, poetic, fond of the occult and mystical.

How to Keep Well

By DR. ROYAL S. COPELAND

For Health Make Milk Foundation of Meals

Every parent knows that the growing child needs milk. But many mothers are nearly in despair because their children refuse to drink it. What can be done to entice the youngsters to drink their quart of milk?

Dr. Copeland

Well, dear mothers, you have many problems, but you can always find some tactics that will work. Perhaps you agree with me it is wise to meet a child's whims and peculiarities in taste, if it is possible. The desired end will be brought about in a more comfortable way than by nagging him, or trying to force him into doing something he does not want to do.

The ideal way to get sufficient of this most nearly perfect food is by taking it in its natural state, as a beverage. But if a child or an adult takes a dislike for milk as a drink there are many ways in which the required amount can be given. It may be used in preparing dishes which make up a varied and delightful diet.

There is nothing more appealing in cold weather than delicious hot soups made with milk. Almost all vegetables can be used, first cooking them and saving the water in which they are boiled. Then they are diced and chopped finely, with milk as the real foundation. Make up soups from your child's favorite vegetables and see what effect that will have.

Oyster soup, made with milk; clam or fish chowder made with it, are most nutritious and appealing to the palate. Corn chowder is delicious when made with milk, a bit of onion, butter and salt. If you make these soups with whole milk you are giving your family a short cut to health. You are giving your boy and girl the valuable proteins, vitamins and minerals found in the milk, vegetables and sea food.

Right here let me say that the best milk is not too good for every member of the your family. No matter what its price, good milk is never an extravagance. Buying one quart of grade A milk for each child and one pint for each adult in your family every day, sounds like an expensive program, perhaps. But milk maintains health. By giving it you are helping to save doctor's bills. It is a program that will help you to came out ahead on the expense side.

There are many delicious milk drinks, too—cocoa, malted milk and milk shakes, flavored to the child's taste. By adding chocolate they are made more nutritious. Most children adore ice cream. Why not have your own ice cream freezer and make your own delicious ice cream desserts for the family? You are sure of the best of ingredients and made with custard of whole milk, nothing is more nutritious for a dessert.

It is necessary that we have a varied diet. It must be one in which are included all the proper food elements necessary for growth and development. There is no better way to secure it than to make milk the foundation of your meals. Grown-ups, as well as the children, need it, and it should never be absent from the table, even for a day.

Answers to Health Queries

E. A. N. Q—How can I reduce?

A—Eat very sparingly of starches, sugars and fats. Get regular systematic exercise. A gradual reduction in the amount of food consumed with the regular exercise will work wonders in most cases.

V. J. S. Q—What do you advise for an oily skin?

A—Try using hot and cold compresses alternately for 15 minutes night and morning.

Miss M. Q—What will remove blackheads?

A—Correct the diet by cutting down on sugar, starches and coffee. Eat simple food.

M. M. K. Q—What causes white spots to appear on the hands?

A—White spots on the skin are due to loss of pigment or coloring matter. The exact cause is not known.

Household Hints

Cover egg yolks with cold water and they will keep for several days.

Never use a large pan for omelet or the eggs will spread and the omelet become tough and thin. A deep pan is ideal if you are not fortunate enough to own a regular omelet pan.

For those who buy flour by the barrel it is wise to make a platform to fit the barrel bottom and put it on casters. Near the top of the barrel a handle is attached by which to pull it around. Then when the pantry is to be cleaned you do not have the problem of moving that heavy barrel to clean in back of it.

An amusing face pasted on the bottle of bitter medicine will help the youngster forget the nasty dose. Just a little psychology.

Nuts can be chopped quickly and satisfactorily by rolling firmly with a rolling pin. Saves washing that tricky food grinder, too.

The use of a small amount of sugar, much as we use salt and pepper, mitigates the harsh taste of many foods without sweetening them. Used in the preparation of meat sauces and gravies, it accentuates the various flavors, binds them into a harmonious whole, and improves the color.

Correct Manners

By MRS. CORNELIUS BEECKMAN

Returning Social Calls

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

1. When a newcomer is returning calls, should she leave cards?

2. Should she leave cards only for those who left cards when they called, or to all who called?

3. How long should one wait before returning calls?

A READER.

1. Yes. Her cards are a charming and gracious way of registering her compliments.

2. She leaves one of her cards for the hostess, and one for any other woman in the household—one, for instance, for an older daughter, a daughter who has taken her place in society, and one, say, for an aunt who is visiting in the household. Not more than three of any one card is now left . . . unlike the days when many cards were left.

If the woman is leaving her husband's cards she leaves one of his for every woman in the household, and one for every man . . . again, however, not more than three of his cards are left.

3. About two weeks. But, often, in these rushed days, it is much longer. However, if calls are returned within ten days or two weeks, the honor of the call seems to register a greater significance, because it comes with what apparently is more enthusiasm.

The Young Hostess

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

If a girl gives a party and invites boys and girls who know each other, is it proper for the girl giving the party to see that each girl is called for by a boy? Or should the girls and boys come by themselves? C. O.

There isn't any reason why the hostess should be expected to make these plans.

Returning Calls

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

Will you please let me know, when moving in a new neighborhood and a neighbor calls for the first time and did not find me at home, but leaves her card, am I supposed to return the call in a certain length of time? MRS. D.

It is gracious and polite to return the visit within about two weeks, if you can, or soon as you can after that.

The Beauty Box

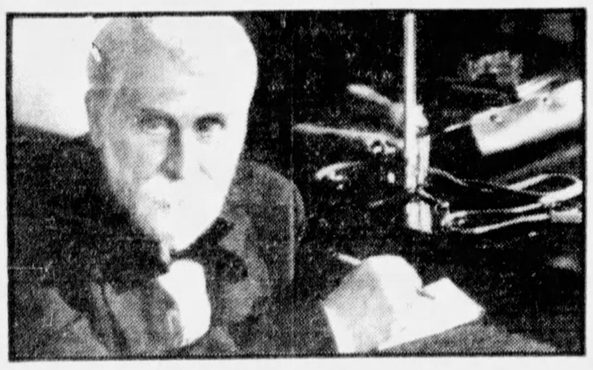
By HELEN FOLLETT

All a girl needs to complete a manicure set is the pointed scissors, a flexible steel file, emery boards, orange wood stick, bleaching paste, and a polish. Cold cream will serve as a cuticle oil.

The same exercises that fatten thin legs will knock fat from plump shanks. Jumping the rope is recommended. Standing on tiptoe and coming down on the heels slowly rouses up the muscles of the calves of the legs, brings them to normal. Rhythmic dancing creates not only anatomical perfection, but makes for graceful movement. It is ideal exercise, and a glowing stimulant to the spirits.

Women with unsteady nervous systems are likely to suffer from excessive perspiration and unpleasant skin odors. Besides local treatment with deodorants, they need daily exercise, a balanced diet, restful sleep and, more than anything else, plenty of water taken into the system.

Considering that a velour powder pad can be purchased for the sum of 10 cents, one little silver dime, it is astonishing that so many otherwise fastidious girls will trot filthy powder pads out of bureau drawers and purses. A soiled pad will grind in more blackheads in one day than massage and cleansing lotions can remove in a month of Sundays.



A Harmless Prescription, but it ends Constipation!

DON'T you want this way of making the bowels behave? A doctor's way to make the bowels move so well that you feel better all over? Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin doesn't turn everything to water, but cleans out all that hard waste clogging your system. It cleans you out without any shock, for it's only fresh laxative herbs a famous doctor found so good for the bowels, combined with pure pepsin and other harmless ingredients.

A doctor should know what is best for the bowels. Let Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin show you how soon you can train the bowels to move freely, every day, the way they should. It's wonderful the way this prescription works, but it's perfectly harmless, so you can use it whenever a coated tongue or sick headache gives warning that you are bilious. Fine for children, too, it tastes so nice, and they ought to have a spoonful the minute they seem fretful, feverish, or sluggish, or become stuffed-up with a cold.

You can get the original prescription Dr. Caldwell wrote so many years ago; your druggist keeps it all ready in big bottles. Just ask for Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, and use it any time anyone in the family is constipated.

Signing Pirates Quietly. Expect One Draft Balk. Recruit's Fourth Trial. | Shires Has New Rival. Cocky Rookie Holdout. Hubbard Tries Again.

TWENTY BUCS ARE REPORTED IN LINE

JUST BECAUSE NO announcement of the signing of Pirate players for the 1931 season has come from the headquarters of the Pittsburgh Baseball Club, whereas numerous bulletins of the receipt of signed contracts have been issued by the heads of some other major league outfits, notably the Brooklyn Robins and Boston Red Sox, it does not necessarily follow that President Barney Dreyfuss has been neglecting the annual task of rounding up his athletes. Neither does it mean that he is having an unusual lot of trouble in getting them signed for another campaign.

Barney Dreyfuss

It's just a matter of policy. Some clubs see an advertising advantage in announcing the signing of contracts as they are received, singly or in groups of two or more. It means that many more notices in the newspapers and that many more opportunities to start the tongues of the fans to wagging in the way that builds up early interest in the game and the prospects of the home club.

MANY OF THE players whose signing has been announced by the Brooklyn club during the last few weeks, for instance, actually enrolled last fall, but the news was held back, for publicity purposes, until just before the training trip. Newspaper space last November would not have helped Robin business in 1931, but now it counts for something.

The Pirate owner, however, prefers to work along different lines. His system is to get his entire squad of players coralled and then announce that they've all signed. So the fact that he has not announced the acceptance or rejection of terms by any Pittsburgh player so far doesn't mean that he hasn't started on the job or that the Buccaneers are balking. It is reported that he has no fewer than 20 of his pastimers under contract already.

THE ACTION OF the Washington club in buying Outfielder Harry Rice from the Yankees indicates a belief that the International League is going to reject the draft. For the Senatorial management preferred Denny Southern to Rice because the ex-Pirate is a right-hand hitter, and planned to purchase Southern from Baltimore if there has been any prospect of a resumption of business relations between the majors and the International.

Washington is the fourth American League club that Rice has been with in five seasons. Harry is not booked for a regular outfield berth at Washington, as the starting gardeners are to be Sam Rice, Sam West and Heinie Manush.

ONE YOUNG BALL player who cannot complain of a lack of opportunity to win a job for himself in the major leagues is George Blackerby, White Sox outfielder. The coming training trip will mark the fourth spring tryout that Blackerby has been given by the Pale Hose. He was shipped back to the sticks after each of his previous three chances. The difference between major and minor league pitching has been the cause of his failures.

THERE HAVE BEEN many other cases like that of Blackerby—players who looked like murderous hitters in the bushes but who proved helpless against major league hurling. However, these failures have not shaken the nerve of one of the latest recruits.

Gene Rye

This rookie is Gene Rye, 22-year-old Chicagoan bought by the Red Sox from Waco in the Texas League, and who, in a night game for Waco on August 6 last year, hung up a new all-time world slugging record by making three home runs in one inning.

YOUNG BALL PLAYERS appear to grow a lot of self-esteem in the Waco climate. It will be recalled that it was from Waco that the modest Art Shires came to the majors, and Shires was a shrinking violet in comparison with this latest rookie, who has turned down a 40 per cent salary increase and becomes the first Red Sox holdout.

Get a load of this: "I'm the best hitter you've got in line," wrote Rye to Bob Quinn in spurning the contract tendered. "I found that out by looking at one of your club rosters, I'm good. I know I'm good and I'll show you that I'm good. But meanwhile I'd like to have you revise the stipend, as the boys say, and revise it upward." Rye may be able to make the grade if he just gets a little more confidence in himself. All that he needs is some one to encourage him.

NOT A PLAYER from Pop Warner's Stanford football squad was picked on an all-star eleven selected in the Pacific Coast Conference by a group of nine quarterbacks. They named McKalip, Oregon State, and Arbelbide, Southern California, at the ends; Edwards, Washington State, and Schwegler, Washington, at the tackles; Baker, Southern California, and Ted Beckett, California, at the guards; Hein, Washington State, at center; Duffield, Southern California, at quarterback; Pinckert, Southern California, and Kitzmiller, Oregon, at the halves, and Schwartz, Washington State, at fullback. The quarterbacks making the selections from the Conference teams they encountered were Griffiths, California; Buerke, Oregon State; Oberg, Washington; Duffield, Southern California; Wilson, Idaho; Erdley, Oregon; Ehegren, Montana; Tonkin, Washington State, and Hillman, Stanford.

EDWARD DOWNING, internationally known sport figure, who died recently, was unlike most old-time fight fans in that he had no great respect for the fistic ability of John L. Sullivan. He always contended that Sullivan had been over-rated, and he held the same opinion of Jack Dempsey, declaring that Dempsey would have been easy for Bob Fitzsimmons, Jim Jeffries or ever Welterweight Joe Walcott. He ranked Gene Tunney above Dempsey, but said Tunney would have been outpointed by Jim Corbett or Kid McCoy.

"In the lighter classes," he once said, "there are no middleweights to compare with Tommy Ryan or Stanley Ketchel, and no welterweights who deserve a place alongside Walcott, Mysterious Billy Smith and Rube Ferns. The greatest lightweights were Jack McAuliffe, Kid Lavigne and Joe Gans, and we have no little fellows to match Terry McGovern, George Dixon, Abe Attell, Jem Driscoll, Young Corbett, Jimmy Barry, Jimmy Walsh and Johnny Coulon."

ONE OF THE greatest track and field athletes of all time will attempt a comeback in the hope of making the United States Olympic team in 1932.

DeHart Hubbard

DeHart Hubbard, famous Negro star, will try to qualify for the big games in Los Angeles, and has started training already, considering himself so old at the age of 27 that he figures it will take him 14 or 15 months to get in shape.

IT IS RECALLED by Harry Salsinger that while at Michigan, in addition to setting his great broad-jumping marks, Hubbard equaled the record for the javelin and discus throws, missed the world low-hurdle record by only a fraction of a second, did 6 feet in the high jump, pole vaulted better than 13 feet, ran the quarter mile within half a second of the college record, and was one of the best sprinters of his day. In a meet at Cincinnati on September 17, 1927, Hubbard broad-jumped the amazing distance of 26 feet, 2 1-4 inches, which would still be a world record, but the official in charge, in reporting the jump, tried to safeguard himself by inserting a qualifying clause that "the landing pit might have been a few inches lower than the take-off." Later measurement showed that the landing pit and the take-off were on exactly the same level, but on account of that qualifying clause in the official report, Hubbard's jump was not accepted as a record by the A. A. U.

GAMES TONIGHT.
Pittsburgh at Detroit.
Windsor at London.

DETROIT, Jan. 15.—The Pittsburgh Yellow Jackets, who have been royally entertained every time their path has crossed that of the local Olympics, arrived here today looking for bigger and better hospitality when they meet Detroit's International League entry tonight.

Roy Schooley's skaters from the Steel City aren't the league leaders, but they shape up as the best club in the circuit every time they tangle with the Olympics. The locals have enjoyed fine success against Buffalo, Cleveland and Windsor, the pace-setters, but against Pittsburgh they have been able to do nothing better than accept three defeats in three starts. The Jackets are the only team in the loop that the Olympics have not been able to down.

FIELDS ON DECK

Coach Charles Reid, in charge of the visiting team, today said that Whitey Fields, who scored three goals the last time Pittsburgh and Detroit clashed, and who has been one of the stars of their every battle, would be given the call over Mickey McGuire tonight. McGuire's recent recovery from an attack of the flu gives the Jackets four centers, one more than they can use. McGuire is to be rested until Saturday, at which time the Jackets meet the Buffalo Bisons at Fort Erie. Fields probably will witness the clash with the pace-setters from the sidelines.

The Pittsburgh squad is said to be at full strength for the first time in many weeks, and the locals' victory chances are not regarded as being particularly bright. Albie Cox, the Jackets' star goalie, is to return to action in the fray here. He has been out for two weeks with a broken hand. The probable lineup:

Pittsburgh.		Detroit.
Cox	G	Venne
Berlett	R. D.	Broph

Ouellette	C.	Williams
Gregg	R. W.	Gillie
Proudlock	L. W.	Stein

Herman Perlick Wins Over Bobby Burns

BALTIMORE, Jan. 15.—(AP.) Jack Dempsey, former heavyweight champion of the world, was the third man in the ring at a feature bout here last night in which Herman Perlick, of Kalamazoo, Mich., won a 10-round decision from Bobby Burns, of Baltimore. The attendance was 3,000.

In the semi-final, Henry Perlick, twin of Herman, was defeated by Buster Brown, who received the judges' decision.

Bob Jones 'Scared' of 'Mike' in Radio Debut

ATLANTA, Ga., Jan. 15.—(AP.)—Bobby Jones made his professional radio debut last night as nervous and excited as any shy Southern debutant.

Two hours the all highest of golf spent before the terrifying microphone during the afternoon rehearsing for his speech of less than 15 minutes.

O. B. Keeler, golf writer, who has followed Bobby in every major tournament of his brilliant career, told of Bobby's reactions to the microphone.

"I've never seen him so nervous and I've followed Bobby in 27 major tournaments," O. B. said.

Bobby admitted frankly he was "scared" of that "thing that looks like an electric fan."

He sighed for one of those yelping golf galleries of 10,000 persons as he fought against the thing that carried his voice to an estimated 30,000,000 persons over a coast-to-coast network of the National Broadcasting Company.

EXPLANATIONS OF RIPLEY'S CARTOONS OF YESTERDAY: ENRIQUE, FIRST MAN TO GO AROUND THE WORLD—Magellan, who is popularly credited with having accomplished the first circumnavigation of the globe, was killed at Mactan before he accomplished his purpose. The man who really completed the first circumnavigation of the globe was Magellan's Filipino slave, Enrique, whom Magellan freed in his last will. Enrique escaped from the Sebu massacre by an act of black treachery and was the only man to reach his native Archipelago and to complete Magellan's voyage. (See: Edward F. Benson's "Ferdinand Magellan.") A CHECK FLEW 200 MILES—When a tornado wrecked the store of Otto Wall at Herpel, Ark., the contents of the building were strewn about the countryside and his cash drawer was emptied of its contents. One check from the drawer was blown to Gatesville, Mo., where a resident picked it up and returned it to Herpel. LOTTIE SCHOEMMEL—On December 28, 1928, Miss Schoemmel swam across the Delaware River at the same point where Washington made his renowned crossing on December 25, 1776. This unusual feat of swimming was accomplished under great difficulty because of the floating ice cakes swirling with the currents. Miss Schoemmel made it in 10½ minutes.

GOLDEN LEADS $25,000 OPEN

AGUA CALIENTE, Mexico, Jan. 15.—(AP.)—John Golden, professional at the Wee Burn Club, Moroton, Conn., came through a Scotch mist which almost amounted to a hard rain yesterday, to lead the field in the $25,000 Agua Caliente open golf tournament with a first round score of 70, two strokes under par.

Tied for second place were Ed Dudley, Pennsylvania open champion and winner of the Los Angeles open, and Mortie Dutra, Long Beach, Cal., at 71, each winning by one stroke in the battle with par.

Bunched at par 72 stood five players, any one good enough to win the $10,000 first money, Gene Sarazen, last year's winner, MacDonald Smith, the veteran Scot, Harry Cooper, Chicago, Horton Smith, the young star from Missouri by way of New York, and Leo Diegel, of the home club, were in good position.

Walter Hagen and George Von Elm, the former crack amateur, playing together, had the same score—74—and Jack Forrester and Frank Walsh, who starred briefly in the Los Angeles open, could do no better than 77, which also was the count needed by Joe Turnesa, winner of the Miami open.

L. A. Byerly, Portland, Ore., led the amateurs for the first day's play with a 77.

BUILDING UP BIG FIGHTS

By IKE DORGAN

The Man Behind the Ballyhoo for the Late Tex Rickard's Fistic Extravaganzas.

CHAPTER IV.

After John L. Sullivan had startled the world with his feats of jaw and bar-busting, my dear old dad, to show his appreciation of John L.'s prowess, named me John Lawrence Dorgan. So you see, I come by my boxing according to Hoyle.

I remember chasing down Bush street in San Francisco to grab the end of John L.'s open hack as he made his triumphant appearance at the old Bush Street Theater in "Honest Hearts and Willing Hands."

John L. Sullivan.

I was 10 years old then and on my toes. That was in 1890. In 1908, 18 years later, my first assignment as a newspaperman in New York was to interview Sullivan, who was appearing with Jake Kilrain, his old foeman, in a vaudeville sketch.

I posed John L. and Jake as they were supposed to have taken their stance when they fought the great 75-round battle for the title.

Frank Hall was managing John L. then. Sullivan was on the water wagon and fooling the world which sneered and said that he would tumble off on his bean. Good, old determined Roman. He never broke his pledge! He was prohibition's best sermon.

JOHN L'S THEORY

Sullivan and I talked of fighters, past and of that day. He had a theory about fighting, one that he followed when he was at his best. He told me of it:

"Young man," he grumbled, in his bass voice, "if ever you have a fighter, tell him never to let the other fellow GET STARTED."

Good advice, but that was Sullivan's life—his manner of fighting. It was Dempsey's, McGovern's, Greb's, McFarland's, Langford's, Walcott's, and where in the world, then or now, could you duplicate them? Never let the other fellow get started! I told that to my man, Ted Sandwina, recently. I remembered Sullivan having given me the advice, and Ted went out and knocked Knute Hansen down six times and out in 1 minute and 49 seconds. Not bad advice.

NEW SLATE SET BY U. S. L. T. A.

NEW YORK, Jan. 15.—(AP.)—The slate of officers nominated to handle the affairs of the United States Lawn Tennis Association for the coming year has been made public, in connection with the call for the fiftieth or Golden Jubilee meeting here February 14.

The list is headed by Louis J. Carruthers, of New York, slated to succeed Louis B. Dailey, of New York, as president, and includes these additional nominees:

First vice president, Harry S. Knox, Chicago; second vice president, Fitz-Eugene Dixon, Philadelphia; secretary, Joseph W. Ivy, Kansas City, Mo.; treasurer, W. Merrill Hall, New York; delegates at large, James C. Stewart and Harry S. Waldo, Chicago; Watson N. Washburn, New York, and Joseph W. Wear, Philadelphia.

Wear recently announced his intention to resign from the chairmanship of the Davis Cup committee.

Dempsey-Sharkey Feud Blows Up

BALTIMORE, Jan. 15.—The Jack Sharkey-Jack Dempsey challenging racket blew up in a puff of smoke today when Dempsey, who refereed a fight here last night, admitted he did not write the article for the Ring magazine that stirred up the tempest in a teapot.

The article said Dempsey figured Sharkey was one man he always could beat and if he should decide to come back he could knock out the former gob. This caused Sharkey to challenge him to a bout for the benefit of the unemployed and to take some potshots at Dempsey's war record.

Dempsey said he rated the boxers in the various weight divisions for the magazine, but did not write the article and was not interviewed by whoever wrote it.

Fordham vs. Pitt, Pitt Stadium.
Uniontown Junior College vs. Pitt Freshmen, Pitt Stadium.
Duquesne vs. Catholic U., Washington, D. C.
Waynesburg vs. Geneva, Beaver Falls.
Marshall vs. Fairmont, Fairmont.

By JESS CARVER.

Fordham University's Rams of basketball will attempt to ram a defeat down the gullets of Pitt's Panthers tonight. The New Yorkers are making their initial basketball invasion of the Stadium Pavilion, and are here with a record of having won seven out of eight games, losing only to Syracuse, which also was clawed by the Panthers.

Don Smith

Ram scouts to the tale goes studied carefully the actions of Dr. Carlson's boys as the latter stormed through the defenses of New York University's Violets in Gotham last Saturday night. They are of the opinion that Pitt is to be stopped tonight. Being stopped is nothing exactly new to Pitt this year, Western Reserve, Creighton and Indiana already turned the trick.

SMITH RETURNS

Coach Carlson has Don Smith, husky and capable sophomore guard, available for duty once again and expects to start him at his regular position against the Rams. The remainder of the Pitt lineup will consist of Milt Cohen and Tim Lawry at the forwards, Bus Albright at center and Co-Capt. Willie Arture at the other guard.

Pitt's other co-captain, Eddie Baker, who rejoined the squad Tuesday, will be in uniform, but isn't expected to see much action for a spell, at least until he gets into condition. He only returned from California Tuesday, where he played in the annual East-West game. The lineup:

Pitt.		Fordham.
Lawry	F	Hayes
Cohen	F	C. Zaleski
Albright	C	Wisniewski
Smith	G	Ryan
Arture (Capt.)	G	Mulligan

Tartans Triumph

Carnegie had a romp last night against Western Reserve's Red Cats, and left the boys wondering just how in the dickens Reserve ever beat Pitt. The Skibos rolled along like champs, snowing the Cats under a 37-to-16 count, in a game in which the result never was in doubt.

Scamping away to a 17-0 lead before the Red Cats could score, Carnegie outclassed the Clevelanders from here to Hong Kong. Reserve employed a two-score zone defense, which was a defense in name only and never in fact. Capt. George Nease, Bob Smith, Ed Stentz, Jimmy Leonard and Red Fergus, the entire starting caste, penetrated it for two-ply buckets during the first 20 minutes of play, meanwhile limiting Reserve's point getting to five markers hung up by Berwald, the Red Cat center, who dumped in a field goal and three fouls.

The second half was almost an exact repetion of the first, with Carnegie maintaining and eventually improving on its 15-point lead. Coach Hogan used his second team to finish out both halves, but the first stringers were the only ones to score.

SMITH DROPS FIVE

Bob Smith led Tech's formidable attack with five field goals and two out of three fouls for an even dozen points. The only Reserve player who appeared to know even the ti... of day was Capt. Charillo.

By beating Reserve last night, Carnegie duplicated its feat of a week or so ago when the Cats

TAD AND FITZSIMMONS

Tad got started in the writing and drawing side of boxing long before I did. The San Francisco quake tossed me right into journalism. I hadn't thought of it seriously up to that time.

I began to rely a great deal on Tad's judgment about things pugilistic. He was covering the colorful [illegible] around San Francisco in those days.

Bob Fitzsimmons came to the coast to fight Gentleman Jim Corbett for the heavyweight championship. Bob started his training at Coey's Gardens in Alameda across the bay from San Francisco, famous as the conditioning camp of Peter Jackson, Joe Walcott, Terry McGovern, Gans, Corbett, Jeff Johnson, Kid Carter, Eddie Hanlon and many others.

Tad discovered that old Bob had a pair of sore feet. It wasn't anything new to Bob. Always when he trained he would suffer from blistered feet. He was on the point of calling off many an important bout because of those blisters.

SOME COSTLY ADVICE

Well, anyway, Tad came back with the startling information that poor old Bob never would be able to whip Gardner.

"The bald-headed old skate can't lift one dog after the other," said Tom.

"You'd better run that hundred up to three. Fitz will fall down," said Tad thoughtfully.

It seemed that the hundred that he spoke of was mine, a saving of $100, gathered in nickels and dimes over a period of three or four years before the century was rounded out.

I take Tom's advice. He was a big shot up in the chips and knew what he was talking about. Sure's no man hobbling into the ring could whip George Gardner.

So I rattled the hoard of silver out of the old land rat and went down to Harry Corbett's place to lay it on the line—Gardner to win.

HANDS FAIL FITZ

Well, history tells about that fight. It relates and as I saw how Fitzsimmons gimping on the tender tootsie and then the other socked Gardner with everything he had until both hands cracked up as they had in the last fight with Jeffries. History and I can tell you that when Fitz broke his hands broken he began to whip those freckled fists over around and on Gardner's head missing by the fraction of an inch. Gardner in mortal terror of being knocked out and being spellbound by Fitz's blue-eyed stare ran for his dear life. He seemed to think that his best effort must be to stay. He lasted and Fitzsimmons got the decision and the title. You can imagine the feelings of John Lawrence Doran, named after the mighty Roman, sitting up there in the dollar gallery of Mechanics Pavilion watching Fitzsimmons demonstrating Sullivan's theory "never let the other fellow get started," while my poor $100 burned up like last year's corn husks.

I didn't get home until 3 o'clock the next morning and my mother was so worried that she sat up until I poked my beak in. She thought that I had gone down to the bay and jumped in. I took my own tips after that.

THE FRISCO QUAKE

The night before the fire and quake I had won first prize at a masquerade roller skating carnival promoted by Jim Coffroth. I went in the character of Old Doc Day. Jack Root and Jake Dressler were the judges, and they had pasted on my costume/characterization at the rest of the lot.

Old Doc Day was a fictitious character in a way, one of the jokes of the time. Harry Tenny had died after a bout with Frankie Neil and Coffroth and all the principals had been questioned by a coroner's jury.

Had Tenny been officially examined by a doctor? Oh, yes. What doctor, pray? Why, Doctor Day, the official medic for the Coffroth enterprises, to be sure. John L. Day, now famous as a race track official, was old Doc Day in the flesh, although he didn't know a button from an adenoid. He wasn't called to testify. First place was to have been a gold watch. That night came the great tragedy and the next day Coffroth and myself, a bottle of wine in each hand, stood on a corner and watched Mechanics Pavilion burn to the ground.

"There go the receipts and all the masquerade prizes," said Coffroth as he waved a spray of champagne at the flames.

Several days later Coffroth met his secretary and stenographer and learned that she had gone to the pavilion at the first sign of fire and had removed the prize and the receipts and all of Coffroth's important papers from the safe. I got my watch. It is in my pocket at this minute and I prize it highly. Coffroth never found any of the other prize-winners. The burning of the city had scattered them every which way.

Strib Confident He'll Win Over Schmeling

OCHILOCKNEE, Ga., Jan. 15. (AP)—W. L. Young Stribling, Macon, Ga., matched to meet Max Schmeling in June for the world heavyweight championship, is confident he can beat the German.

"Confident? Yes, I feel as if I can beat Schmeling. But no, I can't tell you what round. He's a pretty fair puncher with either hand and he showed his ruggedness in taking a lot of punishment from Sharkey.

"I think he's game alright."

SWIM RECORDS FALL IN MEET

The dual swimming meet in which Pitt defeated Duquesne Library, 46-20, staged last night in the Trees Gym pool, was productive of three records, two of the A. A. U. variety, and another, a University mark.

The Panther relay team finished in 1:17.1-5 to clip the former A. M. A. 160-yard record of 1:19. The other A. M. A. mark was established by Moran of Duquesne Library, who set a time of 2:42 to replace the previous record of 2:44 in the 200-yard breast stroke event.

Pitt's sophomore ace, Mike Hanna, lowered the 220-yard free style university record in winning the event in 2:25.2-5, surpassing the former mark of 2:26.4-5. The summary:

LOCAL TALENT BATTLES AT M'KEESPORT

By HARRY KECK,
Sports Editor.

Promoter Jim McGirr is going to try out the local talent idea in his boxing show in the McKeesport Palisades arena tonight in an attempt to stimulate business, which hasn't been any too brisk up that way this season. With the exception of Billy Rose, of Cincinnati, and Paul Rinsko, of Charleroi, every boxer on the card is a McKeesporter, either born or adopted.

Rose meets Benny McArthur, formerly of Saginaw, Mich., in the 10-round main bout. Billy is well remembered by the Tube City fans for his good, hard fight against Tom Malco there last season.

Teddy Welch, old McKeesport favorite, and Larry Kaufman, formerly of Louisville, now of McKeesport, box the eight-round semi-final, and Buddy McArthur, light-heavyweight brother of Benny, who followed him to the Tube City from Michigan, tangles with Rinsko, who has done some good work in the McKeesport ring, and the popular Jimmy Reilly, who came here with Benny McArthur, takes on Jimmy Lloyd, McKeesport amateur, who is making his professional debut, in the preliminaries.

Carnegie Tech's varsity boxing team gets its first test of fire tonight when it [illegible] the West Virginia University Mountaineers in the latter's ring at Morgantown.

Gorilla Jones and Jimmy Duffy are booked for a 10-round bout at Oakland, Cal., tonight. Kid Chocolate meets Mexico Morales at Ypsilanti, Mich., with Frankie Young and the Cuban Kid in the semi-final.

Apples Myers is all set for his weekly show in the Moose Temple tomorrow night and looking ahead to future cards. He has two 10-rounders and a couple of sixes tomorrow, which should produce plenty of action. Jimmy Boyes vs. Young Rudy in the top spot, while Mose Butch and Johnny Warner, rivals since their days as amateurs, box the other 10-rounder, with Harry Eno and Hal Murray in the second bout and Richard Greene and Joey Spiegel in the opener.

The following matches have been made for the amateur boxing show to be held in Columbus Hall, North Side, Saturday evening, under the auspices of the Twenty-first Ward Republican Athletic Association: Butch Jacobs vs. Jimmy Soo, light-heavyweights; Bobby Ruppie vs. Rex Winebush, welterweights; Pat Powers vs. Billy Feeney, and Tony Zeline vs. Eddie Hoffman, lightweights. Young Zero vs. Ray Kemper, featherweights, and Johnny Sheppler vs. Duke Randem, bantamweights.

A meeting will be held in Old Fellows Hall, 2111 Vega street, Saturday evening to perfect plans for a 12-bout amateur boxing show to be held in the Moose Temple February 25, under the auspices of the Homewood-Brushton Republican Club and the Thirteenth Ward Regular Republican Organization, for the relief of the unemployed of the ward.

The red-hot battle between Jimmy Reilly and Young Bordell at Motor Square Garden last Monday night was their second meeting. They clashed recently at Johnstown, with Reilly also winning the decision on that occasion. They may be rematched for the Garden as a result of the disagreement of the fans with the decision Monday night.

All home talent will appear in the preliminaries of the reopening show at the Castle Rink, formerly the Ice Rink, at New Castle next Monday night, for the benefit of the Red Cross. Four bouts, all between amateurs, boxers on the bill are the main-liners, Willie Dacey and Phil Tobias, and both have appeared there before and pleased the fans.

In addition to being closed to boxing next week on account of the automobile show, Motor Square Garden will close two weeks of the month of February, when the good show will be staged there. There will be no other interruptions of the weekly boxing schedule during the remainder of the indoor season, however.

The program has been completed for the Andy Andrucci-Mickey Duris show in Johnstown, January 26, with Joey Katkish, of Lawrenceville, boxing Pressy Johnson, of Akron, in the semi-final; Young Bordell meeting Baye Angelof, of Johnstown, in the second bout and Frankie Scarletta tangling with Louis Rancher in the opener.

Bobby Ray, of the Hill, who recently returned home after an absence of several years in the Navy, has begun to work out and will be ready to box in short order. He is a 145-pounder, who began his ring career here and then left for a couple of enlistments in the service. He is a brother of Ziggy Kahn.

TECH BOXERS MEET W. VA.

Carnegie Tech takes its first plunge into intercollegiate boxing tonight, the Tartan mittmen meeting West Virginia University's boxers in a dual meet in Morgantown.

Coach Ernie Sesto took a team of seven scrappers to Morgantown, headed by Duke Ducanis, varsity football center and Mike Restaino, who has campaigned in local amateur circles for some time, will represent the Tartans in the 145-pound class and is accorded a good chance of winning. Ducanis will box as a 175-pounder.

The other members of the Tartan squad are Eddie Ashe, 125-pound class; Emil Affeltranger, 135-pound class; Bill Sewell, 160-pound class, and Bob Touesaint, heavyweight. Henry Carr, another 145-pounder is being taken along also because Carnegie has no 115-pound representative at this time.

Tonight's boxing will be part of a big indoor program at the Mountaineer field house. The bouts will get under way at 7:30 and will be followed by the dual wrestling meet between West Virginia and Indiana University.

MOUND ACE SET FOR BIG YEAR WITH ENSMEN

By CHARLES J. DOYLE.

Balked by appendicitis just when he seemed to be on the threshold of major-league fame, Stephen A. Swetonic, native son member of the Pirate pitching staff, is all set to make another determined attempt to get within the circle where his many boosters are convinced he belongs.

Steve Swetonic

North Side Steve moved along like one of the smartest and most effective pitchers in the National League in the early stages of last year's race. It was his slab cleverness that started the Pirates with a victory in the curtain-raiser and he continued [illegible] brilliant relief tricks until the surgeons laid him low for a period of two months. His health has been completely restored, however, and Steve is rearin' to go.

IN RARE FORM

Swetonic was in rare fettle when the bell rang last season and the race had not progressed four innings before he was ushered into a battle which the Buccos finally won by the score of 7 to 6.

Heinie Meine, a standout among the pitchers during the preliminary season, was chosen by Manager Ens to twirl the opener but the St. Louis Dutchman was seized with a throat ailment as the Buccos traveled north from New Orleans to Cincinnati to open the season. Meine was ordered to bed and Remy Kremer was given the slab assignment.

STEVE WORKS WELL

Kremer was not expecting the role, and he had pitched only a couple of days before. The Reds found him a soft mark and they were leading the Buccos when Swetonic was thrown into action in the fourth.

Steve carried on like a star; he held the enemy to one run and six hits in the remaining rounds and the Pirates came from behind to win. A great stop by Charley Engle, who was playing third base in place of the ailing Traynor, saved the game.

SOUTH PARK LINKS GETS CLUBHOUSE

By VERN SWARTSFAGER

There will be a temporary clubhouse providing dressing facilities at the South County Park when the golf season opens there next June, according to John Jay Burke, city office manager, who has announced that Director of County Parks Paul B. Ritts has acquired an old stone residence which he plans on completely renovating and utilizing until such time as a picturesque clubhouse in keeping with the beauty of the park can be built.

The utilization of the temporary quarters also has caused more or less of a rift in the general layout of the golf course for play will begin on the seventeenth tee, continue on the eighteenth and from there proceed from No. 1 to the sixteenth, winding up there. The change is not expected to materially affect golf scores and will be found most agreeable.

The temporary clubhouse will be convenient to golfers who desire to partake of food with their golf, for an "eating grove" is nearby. Director Ritts may spend $10,000 in renovating the house and installing locker facilities to accommodate 300 or more persons. The building is a stone structure and more accessible from the city than the spot originally designated for the clubhouse. Burke also said that similar temporary quarters would be provided in the North Park.

It has been reported that Bob Graham, member of several of the local national public links teams, may turn professional and be signed at one of the parks. Al McBride Schenley pro impressario, was slated to get one of the jobs but the city thinks too much of him—and he's decided to accept his raise in pay and stay.

SPORT VIGNETTES

Homestead, which only a short time ago was dreaming dreams of great things for its George Panka, the fighting bricklayer, as a heavyweight contender, now is wrapped up in another native-son heavy . . . . He is George Pirrung, a youth of 19, of German parentage . . . . He stands 6 feet 4 inches in his socks and scales around 220 pounds . . . . He has been boxing only a few months, but in that time has registered four knockouts and earned himself some nice notices in the Boston papers as a result of his work in an international tournament there . . . . He is employed by an ice company, but already is looking ahead to the day when he may do nothing but fight . . . . He is a protege of Hughey Manson, former amateur and pro boxer, who coaches the mittsters of the H. T. Little Club, of Homestead, and will compete for that organization in the A. M. A. junior championships at the Keystone Club, Thursday and Friday evenings of next week.

An officer of the law is responsible for the fact that Harry Fine, former local lad, more recently of Detroit, and now back here to stay—and fight—is a ringman. . . . Some years ago Fine, a Jewish youngster, moved with his folks to Detroit, where an older brother, Raymond, is in the garage business. . . . Raymond is the former Monk Henny, who boxed under that name and also as Ray Gardner, and was a stablemate of Harry Greb and Johnny Ray under the management of James (Red) Mason, a dozen years ago. . . . Now 33, he still goes into the gymnasium, and until Harry left Detroit, a few weeks ago, Raymond regularly put on the gloves and worked out with him.

It was some 14 months ago that Harry suddenly found himself catapulted into the ring . . . . He was driving a taxicab in Detroit and became embroiled in a fight with another taxi driver. . . . A policeman came along and broke up the quarrel, but not until after his eagle eye had spotted the natural fighting qualities of Fine. . . . It developed that this minion of the law was a former boxer, who did his scrapping around Philadelphia years ago. . . . He ordered Harry to show up at a gymnasium and took a personal interest in his first workouts. . . . It was only a short step to an amateur fight and, two nights later, came the youngster's first pro engagement, and he has been going ever since. . . . He has had 26 battles, beating Billy Bulley, Cinder Gomes, formerly of Johnstown; Adam Helzer, Billy Lee and Sammy Caruso, among others.

Fine's keenest delight was in jumping in on short notice, and he did not hesitate, when he returned here, to grab himself off a second bout at the Moose Club, tomorrow night, as a starter. . . . He meets Hal Murray, of Harrisburg, who is good enough to have been considered as an opponent for Battling Gizzy in a windup at Hickey Park, Millvale, last summer. . . . The fighting taxicab driver scaled 167 pounds when he began boxing and now is down around 130.—HARRY KECK.

DUKES MEET CATHOLIC U.

Duquesne's varsity squad, spending part of this week dashing about Washington, D. C., takes on Catholic University tonight, seeking to ape Geneva and upset the Capitolians. Last night the Bluffites mixed it with American University, and tomorrow they hop to it with Georgetown.

Waynesburg plays its third game in as many nights by engaging Geneva in a Tri-State Conference game in Beaver Falls. The outlook for the Jackets is none too rosy. It isn't even a faint pink.

N. Y. COMISH SLOW TO ACT

NEW YORK, Jan. 15.—(AP)—The New York State Athletic Commission entrenched grimly to play a waiting game against the insubordination that has come out of the signing of the Young Stribling-Max Schmeling heavyweight title match.

The commission satisfied itself yesterday with warning all boxing corporations and promoters of the commission rules forbidding negotiations with suspended boxers and managers. Madison Square Garden, through its Illinois subsidiary, signed Schmeling and Stribling to fight in June for the championship, despite the suspension of the German last Tuesday and the vacating of his title here.

"The case of Schmeling-Stribling and the Garden is not officially before us," Chairman James A. Farley said. "We will deal with them in our own way at our own time."

When asked point blank when he planned immediate action against the Garden, Farley said:

"Not today, but we will act in our own way and in our own time."

Indications were that the commission will make no efforts to hamper the Garden and its associate, the New York Hearst Milk Fund, in the staging of the match. The commission has varied disciplinary powers, however, to use in dealing with the Garden and the boxers involved.

The commission suggested a tournament be staged here among the middleweights to determine a successor to Mickey Walker as champion. Walker's title also was vacated by the commission last week.

SCHMELING SATISFIED

BERLIN, Jan. 15.—(AP.)—Max Schmeling today said he was satisfied with the action of his manager, Joe Jacobs, in signing him for a title match with W. L. (Young) Stribling, and that he was willing to meet Primo Carnera if he won from the pride of Georgia.

He said he did not understand how the rumor got around that he did not feel obligated to agree to fight both men.

"There must be some sort of misunderstanding," he said. "I am perfectly satisfied with Jacob's action. It was the best thing he could do."

SPORT SHORTS

UNIONTOWN, Pa., Jan. 15.—(AP.)—The Middle Atlantic Baseball League will hold a meeting here Sunday.

MIAMI, Fla., Jan. 15.—(AP.)—Celebrities of the world of sports and society will watch the hang tails run in today's inaugural of the Miami Racing Association's 15-day meet.

CHICAGO, Jan. 15.—Jack (Kid) Berg, ring of welterweight champion, has signed the contract for his match with Goldie Hess of Los Angeles in the Chicago Stadium on January 29.

PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 15.—(AP.)—William T. Tilden, II, has been dropped from the ranking of the Philadelphia Lawn Tennis Association because he has turned professional. He had been No. 1 for years. First place was given to R. Norris Williams.

CHICAGO, Jan. 15.—(AP.)—The American Association made an unconditional surrender to the major league draft at the annual meeting yesterday. By a mail vote of five to two the Class A. A. circuit accepted the proposal and now only acceptance to Commissioner K. M. Landis.

By JULIUS LEVIN

The Butler Paulists, champions of Butler County, will make their first appearance of the season in the Pittsburgh district tonight when they oppose the Y. M. H. A. passers on the Y. M. H. A. floor. The main attraction will be preceded by a preliminary battle between the reserve teams of the two institutions.

The Paulists have compiled an excellent basketball record under the coaching of Armand Cingolani, former Duquesne University star. This year they have met and defeated some of the strongest college teams in the district as well as the leading amateur and independent quintets.

The preliminary game likewise should prove a battle royal as the Butler Reserves will be out to avenge a early-season defeat at the hands of the locals.

Several important league games grace tonight's card. In the West Penn loop, the South Side Falcons are the attraction of the Ray Schneiders, while the Penn Five plays at the W. U. Hoyles.

Coraopolis is at Homewood in the Wagner Institutional League; Mt. Troy plays at Faith Chapel in the Senior Church League, Hill Top plays at Tarentum and Downtown Y at Wilmerding in the County Amateur League, and the Foresters are the attraction at Manchester Community in the Greater Pittsburgh League.

The P. A. A. passers will be out to make it an even dozen victories tonight when they entertain Tarentum at home.

Shots and Passes

Joe Lengyn, promising South Side basketball star, has been added to the Eagles roster for the second half of the County League race.

St. Josephs has displaced St. Wendelin's as the leader in the Catholic Lyceum League with a record of seven victories and one defeat.

Community House and the Ray Schneiders will meet Friday in independent games. No dates have been set.

The Goldenson Vanities will go after their thirty-third straight victory tomorrow night when they meet the Blairsville Girl Cagers in Blairsville. The Vanities defeated Blairsville earlier in the season.

The managers of the Y. W. H. A. and the Goldenson Vanities will meet Monday afternoon at the Y. M. H. A. to arrange date for a big charity game. The meeting will be held at 3 o'clock.

George Babic, former Javor and Goose Goslin guard, is playing brilliant basketball for the Irene Kaufmann Settlement House passers. Babic has been one of the most consistent performers for the Kahn quintet.

Judging from their work in the first two games, the Hazelwood riders are going to have the County League pace-makers. The Eagles, too, two on the club in their first two games.

The Stowe Independents, who have won 15 out of 20 games played so far this season, meet the Moon Run Hawks in the Robinson High School gym tonight.

THE PRODUCE MARKET

The demand for fruit and vegetables was dull today at the wholesale produce markets of Pittsburgh. There were slight changes in quotations.

The poultry markets rested firm, demand about equal to supply, with slight changes in quotations.

The butter, egg and cheese markets remained steady, demand fair, supply adequate, with no changes in quotations.

Total carlots received, 241 cars on track. Arrivals included 3 cars of apples, 1 potatoes, 1 cabbage, 2 onions, 1 cauliflower, 1 celery, 1 grapefruit, 1 lemons, 1 lettuce, 1 oranges, 1 pears, 11 potatoes, 3 spinach and 1 tomatoes.

Forbes

Does Fiendish 'System' Exist in Wall St.?

By B. C. FORBES

IS THERE a diabolical "system" headquartered in Wall Street which can create stock market booms and national prosperity at will—and then plunge the country into panic whenever the "system" pleases, in order to rob and ruin millions of people?

That there is some such "system" is sincerely believed by many citizens, citizens who are neither Communists nor revolutionists of any stripe whatsoever, but decent, law-abiding, industrious supporters of families.

Mr. Forbes

First let us consider specific examples of this belief, then a brief reply.

READ THIS extract from one of numerous communications sent this column:

"I am a New England Yankee, and my people have fought in most wars of this country.

"It is too bad some in Wall Street can't put the world in their personal pocket. They only use this country's flag to help them collect their dirty money that they have robbed widows and orphans of, and water stock of every paying company they can get their hands on. They don't want men in Congress unless they play in their back yard and do their will. That's why they don't want Brookhart or Norris or any progressive.

"What this country needs is not Wall Street, but another Lincoln to free the people from Wall Street bondage, and if a leader comes up, Heaven help them!"

FROM A HIGHLY respected citizen of Mertztown, Pa., comes a letter containing, among other statements, the following:

"You are fortunate in not suffering from losses that others could not escape through the work of the 'system' as it has operated since it permitted and abetted the speculative debauch since 1928. You have done much to keep the unwary from believing and following their advices in 1928 and 1929. But they are too powerful to be withstood . . . They have been my undoing.

"You know more about this pernicious system which has become international, how it has drawn from the whole country as well as foreign speculation into its coffers, how they used the 'Big Ten,' 'The New Tra,' and the Raskobian preachment that stocks could sell at 20 to 30 times their earnings, etc. I believe you can do some good work before your usefulness has passed to enlighten your readers to keep away from the financial suicide fields and still be good patriotic Americans."

Well, is there a fiendish Wall Street "system" ghoulishly sucking the American people of their financial life blood?

BELIEVE IT or not, this incident actually occurred. The present J. P. Morgan, at one of the regular daily meetings of his partners, after a certain subject had been discussed, asked first one partner and then another whether he was in favor of or against action by the firm. Finally he reached a new partner, who replied:

"I think, on the whole, it would be expedient for us to do it."

Morgan leapt from his chair, confronted the astounded partner and exploded into a fiery tirade exclaiming:

"That's one word you must never use here! Expedient! My father couldn't tolerate that word; neither can I. If a thing is right, we do it. If it is wrong, we don't. Don't dare use such an expression again."

ADMITTEDLY J. P. Morgan & Co. is the most powerful financial house in Wall Street, the most powerful in the world. If there were any Wall Street "system" remotely like the ogre widely imagined, Morgan & Co. logically would be its head and front because of its transcendent influence.

Now, the truth is that, in all my quarter-century association with the financial world, I have never heard a responsible banker or broker or business man complain of one dishonest action or dirty trick perpetrated on them by Morgans. Throughout the financial and big business world, Morgans' reputation for integrity is 100 per cent.

I say this notwithstanding the present J. P. Morgan boorishly kicked me out of his office, without any proper cause, in my opinion, many years ago and has never spoken civilly to me since.

FURTHER COMMENTS on the alleged "system" cannot be squeezed into this column and will have to wait. It is an interesting subject, worthy of straight-from-the-shoulder discussion.

STOCKS SLIDE AS TRADING PICKS UP

Rail Strength Bolsters Stocks in Morning, but List Later Sags 2 to 5

NEW YORK, Jan. 15 (AP.)—The stock market broke out of its narrow trading area on the downside today.

The extreme stagnation of the market in the previous session, as it endeavored to break away from the downward trend of Monday and Tuesday, encouraged fresh selling and trading quickened moderately. Isolated strength of some of the rails bolstered the list a little in the late morning, but the decline became emphatic after midday and losses of 2 to 5 points were numerous. Expectations of the Rockefield Oil receivership, announced in the early afternoon, was an unsettling influence.

The action of the share market was contrary to that of the bond list, which picked up under the influence of further easing of credit rates. Time money asks sagged with the longer maturities down to the lowest levels of half a century or more. Call money held at 1½ at the loan desk with virtually no demand. There was a brisk investment demand for commercial paper and lower rates were regarded as probable.

Apparent inability of the share market to extend its gain and unfavorable earnings estimates were factors in its decline.

Evidence of the extensive flow of standard stocks into investment portfolios appeared in the report of the floating support of U. S. Steel at the end of the year, which showed a drop of 205,422 shares in the three months. The extensive distribution of fixed trust units has doubtedly been an important factor in this showing.

The General Motors December sales report, showing sales to dealers nearly double the like month of 1929 and a large increase in consumer buying, was regarded favorably, but it had little influence marketwise, as the earlier than usual introduction of the low-priced line had foreshadowed a similar showing.

The weekly statements of the Banks of England and France showed that efforts to check the flow of gold from London had as yet failed to take effect. The British bank lost $7,500,000 in gold while French holdings reached still another new peak.

Report Large Pipe Line Orders Placed

National Tube Company is understood to have received a contract for 80,000 tons of pipe for a part of the Texas-Chicago gas line, and Youngstown Sheet and Tube Company is reported to have been given around 50,000 tons for a 200-mile project sponsored by Columbia Gas and Electric Corporation. About 150 miles of 20-inch pipe for Columbia's line are still to be placed.

United Fruit Company Will Show Dividend Earned for 1930

Wall street heard that the annual report, or at least the preliminary figures of the United Fruit Company for last year will be available in the near future and that the showing will not be especially impressive. On the basis of unofficial estimates it was indicated that the company would show its $4 dividend requirements little more than covered out of 1930 profits. This would indicate that operations in the final quarter resulted in little more than an even break for the company. At any rate the figures for the nine months to the end of September which are available, show that the company had net profit before taxes of $11,650,000 equivalent to $3.98 a share on the 2,925,000 shares outstanding as compared with $16,875,000 or the equivalent of $5.77 a share in the corresponding period of 1929.

Though final figures for the year are not available in their entirety as yet, W. S. Gifford, head of the American Telephone & Telegraph Company, states in a letter to stockholders, that preliminary figures indicate the company earned approximately $10.40 a share on its stock for 1930, if based on the average amount of stock outstanding this would compare with $12.67 a share in 1929, or if on the actual total of stock with $12.57 a share. It is estimated that the average amount of stock outstanding for 1930 was somewhere around 16,000,000 shares offers readers of the Sun-Telegraph an opportunity to win a share of $3000.00 IN CASH Prizes!

Pershing's own story of the WAR

EVERY READER IS INVITED TO JOIN THE PERSHING TEST!

CAREFULLY READ THESE SIMPLE RULES

RULE 1—With the beginning of the publication of General Pershing's Own Story of the World War, Monday, Jan. 12, 1931, the daily and Sunday Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph inaugurates a Pershing test in which $3,000.00 in cash prizes will be awarded to readers who submit the correct or most nearly correct answers to a set of ten questions pertaining to dates and episodes chronicled in the Pershing narrative. Contestants will also be asked to submit a letter of not more than 200 words to the question "What is the most important episode chronicled in the Pershing memoirs published in the Sun-Telegraph and why?" This letter will be judged as a part of the Pershing test with the answers to the ten questions. The test questions will be published from time to time during the publication of the story in the Sun-Telegraph and contestants will be allowed ten days to prepare and submit their answers after the last chapter has been printed. The Pershing story will run approximately ten weeks. The exact date of the time limit for submitting answers will be announced later—contingent upon the closing date of the story.

RULE 2—The Pershing test is open to everyone except employes of the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph and their families.

RULE 3—A total sum of $3,000.00 in cash will be awarded as prizes—$500.00 to each of six classes or groups as follows:

The board of judges will make the awards and their judgment will be final. The sets of answers when submitted become the property of the Sun-Telegraph and will not be returned. All sets of answers submitted must be mailed first class postage prepaid and directed to the Pershing Contest Editor, Sun-Telegraph, Pittsburgh, Pa.

TIGER HEART -:- By Robert Terry Shannon

WHAT HAS GONE BEFORE

Connie Calvert, rich society girl, shares her home and fortune with her newly found half-sister, Kitty, whom she discovers living in poverty. Kitty falls in love with Jim Tracy, Connie's former fiance with whom she had broken her engagement when she learned he was a fortune hunter. She now fears for Kitty and calls upon Duke Garson, Kitty's underworld friend, to use his influence. Duke refuses to interfere. He tells Connie he is interested in her. Connie, fascinated by Duke, is disappointed to learn he is an adviser to the underworld. She sees him talking to Higgins, the butler. Later, Duke explains that Higgins informed him of her mother's carelessness with her pearls. Connie reveals she loves Duke. Kitty and Jim announce their engagement. Connie assures Duke his vocation makes no difference to her.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY.

CHAPTER XXXIV.

There was an uncertain moment in which Connie felt herself on the brink of casting aside all reserve and telling Duke Garson, in one confessing rush, how he had unstrung her. Almost, but not quite, she was ready to melt into his arms.

Vastly experienced in life, Garson was still a novice at love. Another man within the way of women might have kept silent and allowed the moment of wordless surrender to come upon him, yet Duke Garson felt constrained to speak, and his words formed little barricades behind which Connie took shelter.

Pitied by Connie

"I don't care what people think about me—I never have," he said, with the barest trace of hesitation in his voice. "I live my life as I see fit, but today, when I was talking to you, I wanted you to think well of me. I was afraid you would misunderstand. If I tried, I couldn't tell you why I wanted to appear well in your eyes—but out there in the garden it seemed the most important necessity I ever faced. It wasn't that I was trying exclusively to convince you that I was all right. I was trying to convince myself that I was as fit as the average man, at least, to come into your home and accept your hospitality."

Suddenly, Connie began to pity him for his uncertainty, his faint embarrassment. Emotion, feeling, had shaken his poise and, a surface scratch, he was scarcely steadier than she was.

"You needn't worry about my bad opinion of you," she said. "It's not bad at all."

"You affect me," he said, his voice somewhat mystified. "You stir me up and set me to wondering about all sorts of things that never troubled me before. Yes, you trouble me, too."

"And you trouble me," she told him.

Silence gathered around and enclosed them. He was so close to Connie that she could hear the faint sound of his breathing, could see the slow, rhythmic rise and fall of his chest. He was not looking directly at her and his profile was revealed, the straight line of his forehead, the chiseled firmness of his jaw and chin. Inevitably, her mind began to play with fancies; she pictured him as a close friend, a lover, a husband. There was no man she knew who conveyed to her such an impression of strength, no man who held the possibilities of heart-warming thrills. Mentally, she tried to draw aloof and catalog and compare him point by point with other men, but always this process was stopped by the presence of that unreasoning tangible sensation of curiosity and tenderness. Unless she guarded herself closely, she realized, she might sink into emotional quicksand. Garson was the first to break the silence.

Realizes Position

"You might change my whole life if I let you."

"No, I don't think I'm that potent."

"Before I met you I was quite well satisfied with myself—and now I'm in doubt," he said, slowly. "I shouldn't have come up here. I don't think Kitty would ever be satisfied now to go back to the avenue, and I'm wondering how it will seem to me tomorrow. This will stir up dreams in me . . ."

She wanted desperately to tell him that he stirred dreams in her, too; she wanted to brush away the cobwebs between them and be to him without pretence what she really was. Sentiment!

He was a creature of sentiment . . . a center of feminine vanity delighted in his beglamored conception of her powers. Yet, deeper still, was the fear that she was, too, as living and breathing as himself, as filled with imprisoned yearning, as hungry for the earthly, lower-leveled substance of love.

Never before had she realized so vividly that she was two persons in one, the primitive, natural woman and the sophisticated product of a civilization trained to conceal all basic emotion.

Discuss Love

"I wonder how many men you affect like you do me?" he mused.

"None, I'm sure," she told him, honestly. "I don't think I ever reached Jim Tracy at all, and he was closest to me of any."

"He must have loved you—"

"No more than I loved you, which was not at all. We were children and we simply fell under the spell of universal delusion. I don't think I've ever been in love, and I don't think any man ever loved me."

"I wish you had never played at being in love," Garson said, unhappily.

"Hasn't everyone been in love—or nearly in love—more than once?" Connie asked, softly. "It seems to me that the heart is always seeking, always hoping—"

She stopped abruptly; ebbs and flows of feeling had been playing with her—now, almost in a panic, she realized that if Duke Garson should put his arms around her and bend her to his lips—she would not have the power, the energy to resist him.

Shortly, she knew not how, they were closer together than they had been before, and this time all barriers were crumbling.

DAILY TRUE STORY 'Atmosphere'

"Look here, young man, when do I get the manuscript of your next novel?"

Dane Metcalf had hoped that John Wainright wouldn't look up from his afternoon paper at the club and see him. He had a guilty feeling, as he should, for he had promised Mr. Wainright that Wainright & Wainright would have his next novel to publish.

In fact, he was eager for this well-established house to keep right on publishing his novels. But he hadn't even plotted out his next one, and his previous novel had been off the press six months.

"Ah, good evening, Mr. Wainright," Metcalf said, smiling graciously.

"Sit down, young feller, and answer my question—you heard me. My enunciation isn't faulty."

"Ah, indeed I heard you."

"You haven't sent your manuscript to anyone else, have you, Metcalf?"

"Certainly not. You get it, Mr. Wainright."

"When?"

"As soon as it is finished, sir."

"Finished? You turned out two mighty good sellers in a year. I hoped you could do three this year. It's been six months; at least one script should be in our hands by now, and we're looking for something for the holiday trade."

"I'll hurry, Mr. Wainright."

"Give me a brief outline of the plot, then I can decide on the artist and plan the whole thing."

"Very well—let's see—where will I start," Metcalf mused aloud. Again he was sparring. He didn't dare confess now that he hadn't even outlined the least fragment of a plot. He would have to do some quick thinking.

"What are you going to call it? I remember now that you said that you could write much better if you first selected a title. What is it?"

Metcalf was thinking what the devil he would say. He had to pretend, had to give some title.

"Oh—er—'Atmosphere' is my title, Mr. Wainright."

"Atmosphere? M-m-m, Jove—good—great—I like that title."

Wainright Pleased

"I'll tell you," Metcalf said, realizing that he had to create a plot as he went along. "There is a highly educated chap, brought up in a genuinely aristocratic environment, see? He never mingled with the common herd, never cared to do so."

Metcalf paused.

"Don't make him a Little Rollo or a snooty stick-in-the-mud, now," Wainwright warned.

"Oh, my hero is regular, athletic and all that. Good at polo, rides skis at St. Moritz like a square-head, you know. Well, his hobby is writing essays, human little essays, slants on human nature, you know. He is preparing a second volume of his work, called 'Inside Out,' meaning that he shows up people as they are. He has got to do a series of little essays on the night-life crowd. It appals him. He doesn't like the thought of the cheap, tawdry people who worship jazz and tinsel and sham joys."

"Nothing very exciting, yet," Wainright muttered.

"I'm giving a mere outline to you. Of course, I have all the notes. Well, my hero goes in for night club life to get his atmosphere. See the idea?"

"See it? I'm ahead of you. He falls for some giddy little dumb Dora and marries her, takes her out of the night club life. Not so hot, Metcalf, not enough excitement."

"Oh, no; he realizes that this dumb Dora is impossible, so he goes back to the intelligent girl of his own set and marries her—see—he was bred in a high-class atmosphere and despite the glamor of this night life and the champagne effervescence of this night club dumb beauty, he drifts back to his own atmosphere."

"Ah—that's good. I had a hunch you'd come through with the unusual—as usual. Start tomorrow and work out the first 10 chapters, Metcalf. I'll start advertising a new book by you."

"Yes, sir," Dane Metcalf said.

He hurried out and got into his car.

"Devil of a mess I got myself into," he muttered.

"Where, sir?" his chauffeur asked.

Visits Night Club

"Ah, Hanson, do you happen to know of any night club, the gayer sort—the more lively, daring sort?"

"Yes, sir. I have a brother who is a waiter and bouncer in the Blue Pig."

"Good; take me there."

At 4 after midnight, Dane Metcalf was sitting in the Blue Pig. His waiter was his chauffeur's brother.

"I'm after atmosphere, want to see how things go," Dane explained.

"Yes, sir, my brother told me. If you put us in a book, don't use right names—on account of the liquor, sir."

"Right. Bring me the usual thing."

"The usual thing is champagne, chicken a la king and a hostess."

He looked up at a blue-eyed, golden-haired girl whose lips were too red, but whose smile was really nice.

"Why—er—"

"Of course you are. I'm the hostess you ordered with your champagne. You're kidding Tom, the waiter, when you tell him you never was in a night club."

"Sorry, I'm from Beacon street, Boston."

"Worse," she said. "What's your name?"

"Dane."

"See? Steering me right off. It's Metcalf. Tom's brother is your chauffeur. My name is Isobel Dunn, and that's no phoney, and let me help you get things straight, Mr. Metcalf. I'll dance with you, drink a little of your wine, be cheerful, and that's all."

"Surely that is sufficient, Miss Dunn."

"Yeah? Well, no hand holding and no funny business."

At 3 he said he would go.

"I'm sorry, Mr. Metcalf, that I made such a break. I see you really are on the level and a gentleman. I guess you think I'm a lost soul."

"You'd be surprised what I think. See you tomorrow night," he said.

He did see her the next night, and the next. He saw Isobel almost every night for weeks and slept until noon and wrote until midnight. He had sent in 12 chapters of his new novel, "Atmosphere."

And then Isobel didn't show up one night.

"Sickness at home, sir," Tom, the waiter explained.

Dane Metcalf got the girl's address and went there. He found her caring for her mother.

"She's awfully sick, but she has always worried about me because of my night job, so now, to keep her from worrying and help her get better, I'm staying with her nights," Isobel explained.

"Take her up to my lodge at Round Top. I'll take you both up tomorrow. She'll be better up there in the pine woods," Metcalf said.

He took Isobel and her mother up there. He had his keeper and wife there to do the work. He had his papers and typewriter sent up.

Praised for Work

Inside of three weeks the remaining chapters of his novel, "Atmosphere," were in Wainright's hands. The novel ended exactly as Dane had outlined it. His hero went back to the aristocratic girl of his own social set.

Wainright was delighted. He telephoned to Metcalf at once.

"You're a genius," he said. "It's great, the only possible logical ending you could give the story—and your night club atmosphere is perfect. Run in next week and see the artist's work."

"Can't do it. I'll be aboard ship next week, going through the canal and to Samoa. I want to show my wife how the Samoan girls dance," Metcalf replied.

"Your wife? Congratulations. Do I know her?"

"Probably not. She was a Miss Dunn, one of the hostesses at the Blue Pig, where I got my atmosphere."

"Ha, ha," laughed Wainright as he hung up. He thought that Dane Metcalf was kidding him.

But he wasn't.

Smart Alecs Try to Break Up Lamar Revival.

(Of course it's from the Lamar, Mo., Democrat.)

Tom Jones, in pretty much of a soused if not snowed under condition, walked to the mourners' bench at the church at 9:30, Wednesday evening, when Rev. Mrs. Lay, who is holding revival services, announced the altar call. There is a story to the effect that two youths went to Tom's home, where he had retired to sleep off a jag, woke him up, and hustled him to the church. Rev. Will Clay, who is helping with the meeting, says Tom first came in and sat down in the rear part of the room. Presently he was spirited outside, where he remained until the altar call. Then the pranksters shoved him in at the door, with instructions to go right up to the front—and this Tom did.

But apparently the committee that is ever on hand near the pulpit got Tom on his knees, and began to do a lot of pretty loud praying. They kept Tom there on his marrow bones until he began to come out of it. He was then pretty restive and soon he grabbed his cap and retreated to the door, where he was glad to make his exit.

Rev. Clay is sure the two smart Alecs figured if they'd send Tom to the mourners' bench stewed it would dissolve the meeting in a roar of haw haws. But the tables were turned, the meeting went on as usual, and as Tom began to come out of it, he was only too glad to escape, unostentatiously leaving the meeting undisturbed.

Another Racket Inquiry

It Is to Be Hoped the Government Profits by the Mistakes Made in the Previous Investigation.

The Department of Justice has undertaken a new investigation of the Italian racket in Pittsburgh.

The racket undoubtedly flourishes here, though perhaps to no greater extent than in other cities.

There was an inspired report that the investigation has been prompted by disclosures of prisoners from Pittsburgh in the federal penitentiary at Atlanta.

Even if the report is true, the government is not likely to find it an easy task to produce enough convincing evidence in court to convict the men "higher up." The difficulty of the task is as plainly shown by the experience of the United States attorneys in the "clean-up" investigation of several years ago.

The outcome of that investigation was, on the whole, disappointing, though it netted a number of minor figures in the racket were enmeshed.

It is to be hoped the government will profit by the mistakes it made. The possibility is not to be overlooked that the racketeers may have been made more adroit by that prosecution. The federal authorities will have to be keen to "outsmart" them.

If properly conducted, the investigation is to be welcomed. Even if it should fail to send the leaders of the rum ring to Atlanta on a conspiracy charge, it may develop, as the other investigation did, evidence of income tax evasion, and throw light on the slot machine and other rackets affiliated with the bootlegging business.

Dogs on Thin Ice

Rescue Stories, While Not Very Important as News, Perhaps, Were Chock Full of "Human Interest."

We think everyone will agree that one of the most interesting news stories in Pittsburgh during the last few days was that dealing with the efforts made to rescue the dog that drifted out upon a Shaler Township reservoir on a cake of ice.

What a charming ending the story had! After a throng of men had sought to coax or coerce the dog ashore, and, failing that, had tried to kill it (fortunately they were poor shots), the dog's six year old mistress came along, and poor Keno responded to her call.

Then there was the story of the two bankers at Sharon who, at some risk and considerable trouble, rescued a little dog that fell through a hole in the ice in the Shenango River.

The incidents were not very important, perhaps, yet they brought to the fore some interesting human and canine qualities.

We are unable to say, by the way, how thick ice should be before dogs should venture upon it, but the Red Cross has just issued a bulletin in which it says ice is not safe for humans until it is four inches thick.

The Lynching Spirit

Pennsylvania, Too, Has Mobs Who, If Permitted, Would Take the Law in Their Own Hands.

No doubt many readers of the Sun-Telegraph, on noting that a Negro accused of murdering a school teacher was put to death with horrible cruelty by a mob in Missouri the other day, congratulated themselves that in Pennsylvania such an atrocity could not occur.

Let us not be too sure of that.

A Negro was burned at the stake in Coatesville, Pa., within the memory of persons still young.

If it should be said that the feeling in regard to lynching has changed since then, attention can be called to an incident that occurred only day before yesterday which shows the need of guarding against mob law.

Threats were made Tuesday to lynch a Negro slayer in Chester County, and the authorities felt impelled to call for state troopers and details of police from nearby communities to protect the man.

The lynching spirit, while usually submerged, is widespread. That does not make it any the less shameful.

Birds in Schenley Park

There Are Excellent Opportunities Right Here in the City to Study Natural History.

The Audubon Society's report that its bird census reveals approximately as many species in Schenley Park as in the rural districts should encourage city dwellers to take up the study of birds or other branches of natural history as a pastime.

It is at least theoretically possible to find as many as a hundred different kinds of birds within the city limits in the course of a year. Norman McClintock, noted photographer of wild life, has obtained some of his most interesting pictures in Schenley Park.

Small mammals of various sorts may be studied in Frick Woods.

Winter is a good time to begin the study of birds, because, the trees being bare, the birds are easily discovered. Anyone, with a little patience, should be able to find at least a dozen species.

There is a good deal of satisfaction in being able to name the birds.

Another denizen of Schenley Park, newly discovered, is not so welcome as the birds—is not welcome at all, in fact. We refer to the Japanese beetle, found in the park by investigators from the State Department of Agriculture.

The park has been quarantined to keep the beetles from spreading. It is forbidden to remove from the park vegetation which may be harboring them or their offspring.

At this stage the matter is not taken very seriously. But it will become a serious matter if the pests increase here to the extent that they have in certain sections of Eastern Pennsylvania, where they have been known to devastate gardens and orchards.

Does the study of natural history have practical value? The campaign against the Japanese beetle furnishes the answer.

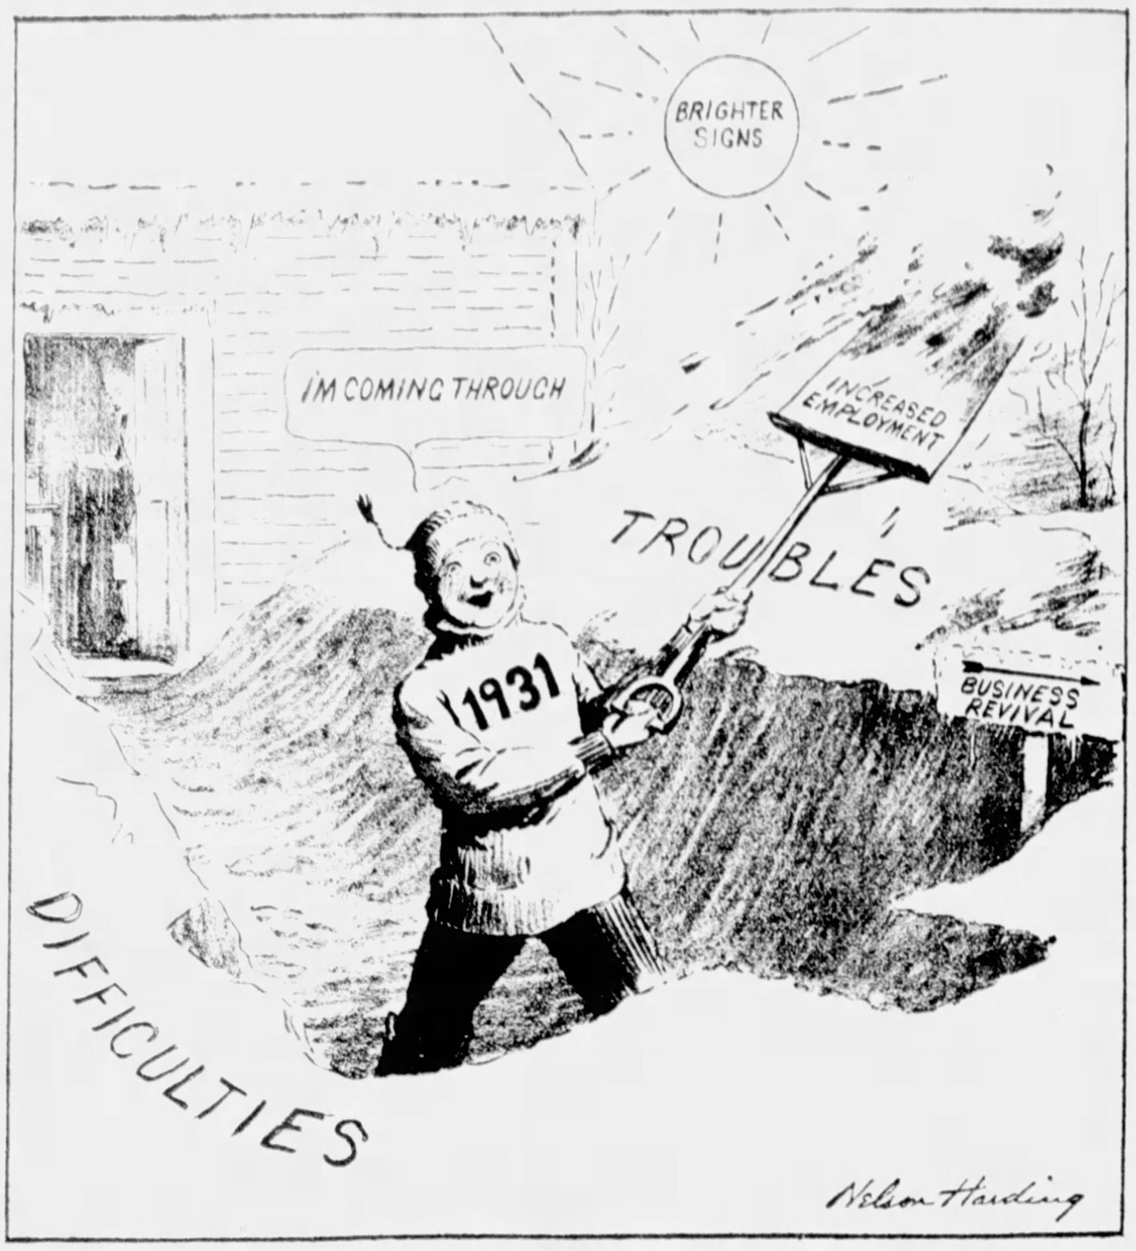
And the Year's Only Started! -:- By Nelson Harding



This year, although not with us long,
Has started well, is going strong
Already his snow shovel lifts
And throws aside blockading drifts

Uncovering that buried sign
On which the sun begins to shine
We'll bet when this young year is done
We'll hail him "Nineteen Thirty-Won!"

'Say It With Airplanes'

That's the Motto of Spanish Revolutionists.

REVOLUTIONARY PAMPHLETS DROPPED ON THE KING'S PALACE.

The great palace in this picture belongs to King Alfonso of Spain, temporarily, until the next Spanish king or queen gets it, or, possibly, until the President of a Spanish Republic moves into it.

The airplane, of which you see a wing tip in the lower left hand corner, belongs to the Spanish Revolutionary party.

That party thinks it has had enough of King Alfonso. Admitting that he is an estimable gentleman, doing his best, a good king, as kings go, they object to the monarchical system, and are trying to overthrow it. Good kings are often overthrown where bad kings have thriven. Louis Fourteenth and Fifteenth of France were bad. Louis Sixteenth was honest, well meaning. They chopped off his head.

This airplane represents modern revolutionary advertising in Spain, where revolutionary advertising in newspapers wouldn't be permitted.

Perhaps it would be better for the king, and Spain's government, if newspapers were permitted to advertise revolutions freely, as they advertise tooth paste.

Publicity is a safety valve. Where you have it, you don't blow up.

Imagine the surprise of King Alfonso, when recently, on a fine Spanish morning, walking in his palace grounds, he saw an interesting piece of paper, picked it up, and read the fiery wording of a revolutionary pamphlet, demanding a republic, and an end of the monarchy.

The king is a sportsman. Shot at many times by would-be murderers, he has never shown fear.

But he may well have said: "Dropping these things into my private garden is going a LITTLE far."

Airplane advertising is not the invention of the Spanish revolutionists, however. The Italian poet, D'Annunzio, used airplanes to scatter pamphlets advising peace, among the ranks of discouraged Austrians, toward the end of the war. And, incidentally, that poet, not young, went in the airplanes himself.

It is, thanks to D'Annunzio, to a large extent, that Italy went into the war on the side of the Allies.

And it is, thanks to Italy, quitting the Austrian-German pact, and enabling France to concentrate all of her energy on the northeast frontier, that the Germans were held, and thrown back.

The service that Italy rendered in the war has never been properly recognized by the Allies. They were selfish in their attitude on the eastern coast of the Adriatic, and more selfish at Versailles.

Fortunately, the emergence of Mussolini seems to have taken care of that for the Italian people.

The Love-Racket

A man never realizes that he has been "taken for a ride" until he finds himself on the way back from the church, with the rice falling out of his collar.

* * *

There may be equality between the sexes, but when a woman marries a cartoon, we say: "It was probably the best she could do." Whereas, if a man marries a chromo, we murmur incredulously: "Well, there's no accounting for tastes!"

The only apparent difference between the pre-war girl and the modern girl is that in those days love was woman's whole existence; whereas, in these days MEN are her whole existence.

* * *

Love defeats its own ends by making a woman silent when she seems to be responsive, weak when she desires to be firm and sentimental when she ought to be amusing.

* * *

"Seek and ye shall find" does not apply to love or fame, which always sneak up on you when you are least expecting them. For instance, think how surprised the lowly calf's liver must have felt when it woke up to find itself adorning the center of the table instead of in the cat's saucer.

* * *

Looking-glasses are most patronized by plain women and handsome men. When a woman looks into a mirror, it is for reassurance of precaution; but when a man looks into a mirror, it is for pure pleasure.

If a woman hasn't anything else in the world to do she can always go to a doctor who will discover a new germ in her, to give her distinction and something to talk about.

* * *

Nothing is "home-made" any more, not even love. What with the rivalry of the parked car, the park bench and the rumble seat, the old back-parlor divan is nothing but an "ornament" now.

* * *

The winner in love is the one who does not take the game too seriously, who keeps a cool heart, a steady head, a poker face and never overplays her hand.

IS SPACE INFINITE?

By Archibald Henderson

One of the most arresting and significant features of modern science is the fundamental and searching examination now being made of fundamentals. The modern scientist has turned sceptic, he doubts the axioms of the past, and questions the accepted commonplaces of the thinking of the last century.

Is time like an arrow, advancing uniformly and with relentless force? Or is it a figment of the fancy, a function of motion rather than an absolute quantity? Is space something infinite and unchanging, the same here as it is in the neighborhood of the remotest island universe? Or perhaps space depends upon matter; so that the more matter we have, the more space it takes to contain it? Does space exist only with relation to matter, or is perhaps the contrary true; as Einstein queries, is "space eating up matter"?

Physics can scarcely be placed upon a sound and logical basis until some of the basic concepts upon which modern physics rests are more fully understood. Perhaps the most fundamental of all these concepts is that of the ether. Impulses of various sorts—gravitational force, radiation, electricity, for example—require a medium for their transmission. There are convincing reasons for believing that air or atmosphere, as ordinarily understood, is not endowed with the essential characters for carrying these various forces. In consequence, physicists were driven to the expedient of positing or assuming some medium for carrying streams of energy through space.

If we go back to the middle of the seventeenth century, we encounter the celebrated theory of vortices advanced by the French philosopher and scientist, Descartes. Interplanetary space was assumed to be occupied by a plenum filled with vast vortices. For example, the sun was supposed to lie at the center of an immense vortex carrying the planets; and each planet in turn was likewise assumed to be the center of a particular vortex, in order to account for the motion of the planet's satellites. Thus we see the beginning, in a crude form, of the concept of the ether or space-filling medium.

Ever since the days of Hook and Huyghens, scientists have been thinking of light as a pressure through some sort of non-material medium filling all space. Thus we have what is known as the lumeniferous ether; and light came gradually to be regarded as a wave phenomenon. However, with the coming of wave mechanics, the ether fails to meet all the requirements of a suitable dispersive medium.

No substitute has yet been found for the ether, even though it does not, as at present defined, meet all the requirements. Indeed, as Eddington says, we need an ether. The physical world is not to be analyzed into isolated particles of matter or electricity with featureless interspace. We have to attribute as much character to the interspace as to the particles, and in present-day physics quite an army of symbols is required to describe what is going on in the interspace. We postulate ether to bear the characters of the interspace as we postulate matter or electricity to bear the characters of the particles . . . The ether is as much to the fore as ever it was in our present scheme of the world.

LISTEN, WORLD

By Elsie Robinson

There are thousands of unemployed women in England. And strange as may seem, there are also many vacant jobs. The unemployed women don't want them. Won't take them. Get mad when they're offered!

For the jobs are in homes. Domestic service. AND THOSE UNEMPLOYED WOMEN WON'T ENTER DOMESTIC SERVICE.

They're used to hard labor. Most of them have worked in mills, factories, or mines since they were children. They're accustomed to long hours, small pay, dirt, shabby clothes, hunger and cold. They're living now on meager "dole." But they indignantly refuse jobs as servants. They say they "haven't come to that yet."

"Domestic service is despised," says the Manchester Guardian, in commenting on the situation, "not so much because it means hard work for none-too-generous pay, as because of a vague, social humiliation that is associated with it."

Unreasonable? Perhaps, but you'll find the same unreasonableness in America. HOW MANY OF OUR OWN THOUSANDS OF UNEMPLOYED WOMEN WILL ACCEPT HOUSEHOLD JOBS EXCEPT AS A LAST RESORT?

We've no caste system such as virtually prevailed in England. Servants here aren't paid starvation wages. A good housemaid, cook or nurse can make as much with board and lodging included, as the average stenographer. She has better chances to save. And it's "womanly work" in an environment which women are supposed to prefer. But try and persuade your unemployed sister or daughter to accept a position in Mrs. Jones' kitchen and see what happens.

Does that seem absurd to you, as a man? Well, what's your own reaction? Would you seek a wife in Mrs. Jones' kitchen? Or prefer to "step" with a chambermaid or a secretary? THEN HOW DO YOU SUPPOSE THE GIRL, HERSELF, FEELS ABOUT IT?

Yet why is it? Why is it lovely if the wife bakes a pie for you but "menial and degrading and humiliating" if she bakes it for Mrs. Jones? Is it because Mrs. Jones treats her as an inferior—lodges her shabbily—imposes upon her? Or is housework, in itself, uncongenial to women? DO THEY, IN SPITE OF SENTIMENTAL TRADITION, DISLIKE PUTTERING AROUND A HOUSE JUST AS MUCH AS MEN WOULD DISLIKE IT? And will they, if given a chance, accept any other chore rather than endure its loneliness, dullness and monotony?

Whatever the cause—there's the condition. What's to do about it? The British suggest unionization.

"Domestic service is a skilled occupation," say they. "Unionize it and it will have the dignity and social recognition which other crafts have attained."

A nice theory—but English women will have none of it.

"We don't want union agents nosing into our homes," say the employers.

"We don't want union inspectors messing into our jobs," say the employes.

Yet, those same girls, working in mills and factories, expect supervision and submit to bosses and inspectors.

What's the answer?

The Rhyming Optimist

By ALINE MICHAELIS

To the Beloved

Was it your tender smile, your glance,
Was it your sweet, appealing air,
Was it your Dresden grace, perchance,
That set the snare?

I cannot tell just how it came
Or what it was that wrought the change,
What sudden fuel made love flame
And past ways strange.

But in your eyes' dark loveliness
And in your Titian tresses' gleam
I found relief from all duress,
I lived a dream.

A dream which like all dreams must end
But, in its passing, leaves us this,
To temper storms that life may send:
Remembered bliss.

Your beauty's items I review
As some rapt monk his beads might tell,
White hands, red locks, blithe heart of you
Which wove the spell?

NEW YORK DAY BY DAY

By O. O. McIntyre

NEW YORK, Jan. 15.—Few cities are so storm conscious as New York. A quick flurry will desolate streets and bring trade in shops and stores to a full stop. When dark clouds gather, the weather bureau is besieged by frantic inquiries. Foolish fear of a tidal wave has never been quelled.

At the Polo Grounds more than a year ago a sudden shower so terrorized the crowd a stampede resulted, costing several lives. A high wind is an especial horror for those convinced that one day some cloud-scraping shaft will buckle and crash to the ground.

Such towers are built to withstand the heaviest gale, and engineers say a catastrophe is impossible, but this does not allay taut nerves. Lightning creates a similar dread. Telephone calls drop to an astonishingly low level. Underground tube stations are packed with timid hide-outs.

Not in many years has lightning damaged New York mid-town, the tall spires acting as protectors. There are frequently freakish displays as bolts leap, kitten like, from tower to tower, but never damage. Yet many upper story offices are completely prostrated until it is over.

Innumerable New Yorkers jump into feather beds and cover themselves until an electrical storm has passed. Receiving wards in hospitals always have their quota suffering what is known as "lightning hysteria," a semi-cataleptic state of stark terror.

High pressure life on the cramped isle has also developed another phobia that has attracted specialists. It is a sort of scrupulous neurosis which only flares out when its victims approach a revolving door. Three famous executives are notable examples of its sway.

They enter their buildings through side street or back entrance to avoid the whirling experience. Like lightning, the danger in revolving doors has reached the irreducible minimum. In a drunken hotel lobby riot one dawn a man's neck was broken in a revolving door. That sums up the casualties.

* * *

Many New Yorkers have a dread, too, of mounting to the top of the lumbering green buses. Yet the buses never capsize. The only tragedy of the bus tops was enacted several years ago when a passenger, rising to get off at a corner, failed to heed a conductor's warning and was decapitated by a projecting hotel canopy.

Nobody has suffered more acutely from stage fright than Al Jolson on opening nights. He often had to resort to sleeping potions for several days before the event and at a half dozen premieres it was necessary to "hold the curtain" while the comedian got hold of himself. In five minutes after he appeared his calm was restored and he was ad-libbing and functioning like a machine gun.

* * *

Two young actresses on the New York stage this season have made gallant comebacks. A sort of detour on way to oblivion. Less than four years ago they were whooping things up around Zelli's, Florence's and other Parisian hot-shots—already twitching from drink and drugs. But they are over their fling, working earnestly and living sedately.

* * *

Old lachrymose ballads are restored to favor. Night clubs feature them in the mellow hours in the effort emotionally to moisten eyes of stayouts. In a minstrel show in our town one performance a fat tenor waddled to the footlights and warbled: "Be Kind to Your Mother. She's the Only Mother You Got." And the town drunk, in a sentimental glow, knelt reverently in the aisle and sobbed out loud.

Many of us, I believe, have longed to organize a cabal against various types of singers who have been lifted to fame on a false screech or an odd delivery in the past few years. The woods are full of them. Helen Kane, the Brox Sisters, Libby Holman, Rudy Vallee, Frances Williams, Helen Morgan, Adelaide Hall and Morton Downey. To my notion their voices are as spurious as the fat smile of a lady killer. Yet it cannot be denied each has an intangible something that grips across the footlights or over the radio. And that is what causes the clicking noise at box office windows.
